City Retail Butter Price Drops Today 5 to 6 Cents

Top Print at 85-87; Cake and Powdered Soaps Also Down At Varying Figures

By Murrey Marder
Post Reporter

Butter prices will drop an additional 5 to 6 cents a pound in some stores here today, with soap and soap powder prices also down, reflecting wholesale market cuts.

Top-grade print butter will be 85 to 87 cents in leading markets, a drop of 10 to 13 cents under prices of a week ago.

Due to Level Off

The flurry of below-market-level slashes by a number of merchants here, however, which brought a burst of weekend "price war" tactics, is expected to level off next week to quotations more in line with wholesale prices.

Significantly, recent price cuts have been made on listings at or near record levels.

The Bureau of Labor Statistics reported yesterday that on January 15 its retail food index hit an all-time peak of 209.5 per cent of the 1935-39 average base period of 100 per cent.

This level, the bureau said, was 13 per cent above the post-World War I peak of June 1920, 123 per cent over August 1939, and 14 per cent more than a year ago.

Averages Compared

Average prices of selected foods on January 15 were:

Flour, 5 pounds, 54.8 cents; round steak, 88.6 cents a pound; pork chops, 70.6 cents a pound; bacon, 83.8 cents a pound; butter, 97.1 cents a pound; eggs, 79.3 cents a dozen; potatoes, 15 pounds, 79.5; lettuce, 18.8 a head; lard, 35 cents a pound; shortening, 46.8 a pound; sugar, 9.8 a pound.

At many leading markets here yesterday, the following prices were posted (some stores were over or under these listings):

Flour, 5 pounds, 41 to 44 cents; round steak, 69 to 78 cents; pork chops, 50 to 65 cents; bacon, 55 to 69 cents; butter, 85 to 93 cents; eggs, 55 to 67 cents; potatoes, 15 pounds, 67 to 68 cents; lettuce, 10 to 15 cents a head; lard, 23 to 25 cents; shortening, 41 to 43 cents a pound; sugar, 8.5 to 9 cents a pound.

Several food chains serving this area flatly denied yesterday that any of their price listings contained "loss leaders," or prices below wholesale levels designed to lure in customers.

Some Admit Taking Loss

This was equally denied by several independent supermarket operators, but others admitted that they were deliberately losing money on some items in order to undersell chain prices. Some independent retailers, in turn protested that they were forced to sell below wholesale prices to meet competition.

Housewives seeking to take advantage of the unusual price drops generally found that in order to do so they had to divide their shopping among many stores, buying the "specials."

One independent supermarket owner declared he was selling more than a score of items several cents below wholesale cost, and some of his competitors agreed that many of his listings were below their own purchase prices. "But some people still come in here," he declared, "and expect to see 1939 prices—they'll never see those prices again."

The same supermarket dealer admitted, a bit sheepishly, that he

Housewives Revealed As Skeptics on Prices

Grain Prices Shift Wildly in Chicago Mart

Butter Hits Lowest Wholesale Level Since November

By John W. Ball
Post Reporter

Butter spotlighted the commodity markets yesterday, wholesale prices dropping at Chicago from 3 to 5½ cents a pound to the lowest levels since November.

Grains went up and down like an elevator. Price changes were so rapid that it was difficult to follow them. At the end the trend was downward.

Following was the score at the close:

May and July corn off the full limit of 8 cents. More distant deliveries were unchanged.

Wheat was from 5 cents lower (May contracts) to 1¼ cents higher.

Soybeans were down the full limit of 8 cents a bushel.

Oats were 1½ to 3 cents higher.

Choice Hogs Unchanged

The top on choice hogs was unchanged at $24, with the range being from $19.50 to $24. Choice cattle were lacking, with prices about steady for other grades. Lambs were down. Receipts continued low.

New York stocks were steady, with gains about as numerous as losses.

For the seventh time in 10 days, the millers' price for flour for bakery use declined, 5 cents a pound to $6.20. Flour for home use remained unchanged.

From Cuba came confirmation of the purchase of a million tons of sugar by the Government for con-

Midnight Tolls Rockefeller's Wedding Hour

Palm Beach, Fla., Feb. 13 (AP).—Winthrop Rockefeller and his bride-elect, Mrs. Barbara Sears, awaited the stroke of midnight to marry.

The Rev. Winslow S. Drummond, pastor of the West Palm Beach Presbyterian Church, will perform the ceremony.

Guests include the Duke and Duchess of Windsor, Woolworth Donahue, Mrs. Hudson Vanderbilt and Mrs. John S. Kelly (Brenda Duff Frazier).

Mrs. Sears wore pink linen with Peter Pan collar and crocheted white trim. She wore pink shoes and carried a spray of white orchids with one blue one.

Woman, 72, Hurt 30 Months Ago, Still Unconscious

Hagerstown, Md., Feb. 13 (AP).—After 30 months, physicians still are trying to bring Miss Bertha Myers back to consciousness.

The 72-year-old woman fell on August 9, 1945, received a head injury, and has been in a coma ever since at Washington County Hospital.

Doctors said she can take nourishment and is in relatively good physical condition. But she recognizes no one, cannot talk, and shows no other signs of consciousness.

One brain operation has been performed. Attending physicians have not been able to find a parallel in medical history.

Austria Plan Rejected

Vienna, Feb. 13 (NYHT.).—As a gesture of hope for success in next week's negotiations at London for an Austrian peace treaty, the United States today proposed the four occupying powers withdraw most of their controls in Austria. The proposal was rejected by Russia.

Sees GOP Goal Simplified

Sen. Wherry Predicts Tax Cut Regardless of Dipping Prices

Acting Senate Republican Leader Kenneth S. Wherry (Nebr.) yesterday flatly predicted a 1948 tax cut regardless of dipping markets and prices.

Wherry said a fall in prices if anything should make it easier for Congress to reduce taxes and make the cut stick over a presidential veto.

The Nebraskan argued falling prices should mean falling Government costs, and simplify the Republican goal of trimming the budget down to tax-cutting size.

Wherry's forecast followed indications of uncertainty in both parties over the effect of dropping markets on tax reduction plans. Some conservative Democrats, whose votes will be needed to override a veto, clearly haven't made up their minds.

Doubts voiced in these quarters had to do with the probable effect of falling prices on national income. In passing a 6½-billion-dollar tax reduction bill, House GOP tax strategists had allowed for a scaling off of income in the last half of this year and the first half of next, but hadn't anticipated an earlier drop.

Senate Finance Chairman Eugene Millikin (R., Colo.), who will open Senate tax hearings around February 23, has been privately negotiating for a cut of from 4 to 4½ billion dollars.

Millikin was reportedly getting ready to throw back at the Administration its argument that taxes should stay high in periods of peak income, in order to reduce the debt, but should be eased in times of recession.

Wherry said he predicated his tax cut forecast on his belief that Congress can redeem its Budget Committee's pledge to cut 2½ billion dollars from the President's estimates, make a 2.6 billion dollar payment on the debt, and still balance the budget.

He said he agreed with House Banking Chairman Jesse Wolcott (R., Mich.) that Congress should "mark time" on all economic measures, including inflation controls, until it knows definitely where commodity prices are headed.

Taft Would Reduce Farm Parity Aid

Senator Surprises Stockmen by Asking Payment Below 90%; Assails U. S. Controls

Omaha, Feb. 13 (AP).—Grain and livestock men heard Senator Taft (R., Ohio) condemn Government controls today but surprisingly propose a cut in the level of farm price supports.

Facing an issue that climbs in interest as commodity markets slump, the Ohioan called for a change in the system by which the Government guarantees that some farm prices will not fall below fixed levels.

(It does this on a so-called "parity price" basis supposed to give farmers the same purchasing power they had in a base period.)

"I think that if there is to be such a support program it ought to be at a much less percentage of parity than 90 per cent, although at 90 per cent the Government might undertake to interest itself actively in creating more of a market for the product," Taft told members of the Livestock Exchange in South Omaha.

As an example, Taft said he believes the Government should help in the erection of industrial alcohol plants such as one located here.

Taft a "True Liberal"

In a major speech tonight Taft claimed the title of "true liberal," a term he said New Dealers have no right to "appropriate."

"You and I may not think of ourselves as heroic," he said. "But if we remain firm in our purposes it is possible that the future will consider all of us heroes."

"We have still kept liberty alive in America. Liberty is not a flag. It is a whole way of life."

Taft attacked as non-liberal President Truman's proposals for price-wage and rationing controls, compulsory health insurance and universal military training.

In his earlier speech Taft had indorsed a proposed change which would base "parity" largely on national income, rather than the factors now used.

Cheered Stand On Controls

While the farmers and livestock men sat silent through his discussion of this point, they cheered his assertion that price control and rationing had proved a "complete failure."

Here to drum up Nebraska support in his race for the Republican presidential nomination, Taft arranged to give a Lincoln birthday dinner audience tonight his definition of a "liberal."

In his earlier speech he outlined three other farm program proposals. They were:

1. No price or production controls, although the latter might be used "in the greatest emergency."

2. No taxation on cooperatives of "farmers banded together to sell at a higher price or buy at a lower price." He said some "commercial" cooperatives should be taxed.

3. Government aid for soil conservation on a long range basis, but no payment for fertilizer which directly improves crops sold in the ensuing year.

Taft took occasion to chide President Truman for his repeated requests for price-wage and rationing controls.

He said these pleas look "rather foolish today when we see the tremendous drop in commodity prices without price control."

The Ohio Senator visited Iowa briefly for a short speech at the Lincoln Memorial in Council Bluffs during the afternoon. Only a small crowd gathered as he spoke in a heavy snowstorm.

It was on Nebraska that Taft was concentrating most of his political attention in an effort to win the backing of the State's 15 delegates at the Philadelphia GOP convention.

He told a news conference that he doesn't believe there is any "fundamental difference" of viewpoint between him, Gov. Thomas E. Dewey of New York and former Gov. Harold E. Stassen of Minnesota. The latter two and other candidates are running in the April 13

Rape and Robbery Are Reported By Housewife

A 32-year-old Negro housewife told police yesterday she was raped and robbed by a scar-faced stranger who broke into her home at 10 a. m., on Florida ave. near North Capitol st. ne.

After breaking through her door and raping her at knife point, she told police, the assailant took her ring and wrist watch, valued together at $100, and fled. She described him as a dark-skinned Negro, about 25 years old, 5-foot-7, and weighing about 180 pounds. The right side of his face, she said, was marked by a 6-inch scar, apparently from a burn.

Indications of an impending arrest came last night when the victim and her husband were summoned to police headquarters to identify rogues' gallery pictures of a man answering the general description of the assailant.

Senate Unit Votes 5.3 Billions In European Aid for 12 Months; Marshall Puts Hope in Union

Stable Western Bloc Would Spur Soviet To Settle Disputes, Secretary Believes

Des Moines, Feb. 13 (AP).—Secretary of State Marshall tonight described the formation of a western European union as "our great hope."

A "stable and healthy western Europe," Marshall said, would make Soviet leaders "much more inclined" to reach a settlement of problems that now divide Russia and the West.

Marshall's remarks were contained in an address prepared for the National Farm Institute. Grounded by bad weather at Knoxville, Tenn., while en route here by plane, the Secretary arranged to read his speech by telephone from a radio station in Knoxville.

He unreservedly indorsed the western European union proposals of British Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin.

Half-Hearted Aid a "Tragedy"

And he declared that "half-hearted and inadequate" United States aid to Europe would have the "tragic" result of letting western Europe, the Near East and the entire Mediterranean area pass into the control of "the Soviet Union and their Communist allies."

To "meet the situation grudgingly," the Secretary declared, would be the same as doing nothing—and doing it "at great expense."

Marshall recalled saying when he returned from the latest London conference of Foreign Ministers that "there must be a decided change in the situation before we would have a basis for a genuine settlement with the Soviet Union."

"I meant," he said, "that if a stable and healthy western Europe can be realized, the Soviet leaders, being supreme realists, would be much more inclined to reach a settlement on the terms of a peace treaty."

U. S. Faces "Greatest Decision"

Marshall said the decision of 16 European countries to pool their recovery efforts—under what has become known as the "Marshall Plan"—was "a historical step of first importance toward the making of a peaceful world."

"And now," he said, "there is in progress a further development of this concert of free nations and one of great importance to the future of Europe.

"On the recent proposal of the British Foreign Minister, Mr. Bevin, they have passed beyond their agreements for economic coordination to the consideration of a western European union. This development has been our great hope."

The European recovery program confronts the American people with "the greatest decision" in their history, Marshall said.

He warned against getting "so preoccupied with the details that we lost sight of the great objectives" of the recovery program.

Enumerates Objectives

These he set forth briefly: "Stabilizing the world situation, restoring a normal development of world trade, terminating the chaos which threatens the peace of the world."

He urged that these considerations be balanced against the dollar cost of the program and the shortages that might result from it.

If Russia takes over Europe, Marshall said, "free institutions would not long survive" on the continent. Moreover, "the position of the British Isles and the whole structure of the British Commonwealth, which has exerted a profound influence on the

Britain, France See Time Ripe For New Recovery Conference

London, Feb. 13 (AP).—Britain and France indicated today the time is about right for considering a new 16-nation Marshall Plan conference.

Tentative plans for such a conference in mid-February were dropped last month after the United States State Department suggested a postponement to see what Congress does about financing European recovery. But today the British and French had a green light from Washington.

(The "green light" was given to the British and French Ambassadors last Tuesday, a State Department spokesman disclosed yesterday. The Ambassadors were told that by the end of this month some indication of Congressional opinion would be ready in the form of a draft bill.)

The British Foreign Office said "preliminary contact" had been made today between Britain and France on the question of calling a conference. A spokesman emphasized that it was too early to say when or even where such a conference would be held, or whether it would be held at all.

Since plans for a conference were abandoned a few weeks ago a British-French commission has been touring the other 14 European countries participating in the Marshall Plan. The commission has been collecting information on what steps have been taken by each country to put their economies back on their feet. Self-help principles were adopted by the first Marshall Plan conference at Paris last summer.

Bidault Urges Work For 'European Union'

Paris, Feb. 13 (AP). — Foreign Minister Georges Bidault said today the 16 Marshall Plan nations should work toward formation of a "European union."

A step in this direction, he told the national assembly during a foreign policy debate, will be the forthcoming customs union of France and Italy. This, he said, "will be of utmost importance to the reconstruction of Europe."

Committee Leaves Spending Rate Intact But Cuts Timetable; Favors Full Term

By Ferdinand Kuhn, Jr.
Post Reporter

The Senate Foreign Relations Committee voted unanimously yesterday to authorize $5,300,000,000 for the European Recovery Program for the 12 months, ending March 31, 1949.

This compared with the Administration's original request for $6,800,000,000 for 15 months ending June 30, 1949, and represented a change in time-table rather than a cut of a single dollar.

The $5,300,000,000 figure, Chairman Arthur H. Vandenberg told reporters, was exactly what the Administration had thought would be needed for the first 12 months.

Votes 4¼-Year Program

The committee also voted to authorize a 4¼-year program without putting an over-all ceiling on spending during that period. It did so by the simple device of authorizing "such appropriations through June 30, 1952, as the Congress may subsequently decide."

This, said Vandenberg, was "the trade-mark of continuity"; it eliminated the need of annual authorizations, but left the precise figures to annual appropriations by Congress.

The $5,300,000,000 figure will, of course, have to run the gauntlet of the two appropriations committees and the two houses. Vandenberg told reporters he had reached no understanding with Chairman H. Styles Bridges of the Senate Appropriations Committee, and had received "no assurance of any nature regarding the health or mortality of this figure."

Billion-Dollar Advance

Nevertheless his committee took good care to prevent the start of the program from being delayed by long debate in the Appropriations Committee of the Senate or House. It authorized the Reconstruction Finance Corporation to advance one billion dollars as soon as the authorization act had been approved by both Houses and signed by the President.

This was twice as much as the Administration had originally asked for. Since the ERP will cost about half a billion a month, the billion-dollar advance means that the appropriation act can be delayed until about June 1 of this year without endangering European recovery.

Tentatively Approves Whole Bill

With its decisions today, the committee completed tentative approval of the entire bill, moving with unexpected speed through the long and complex document. It will meet again on Tuesday for a final review and for approval of its report, with a good prospect that it would report the bill to the Senate in the latter half of next week.

"I think the present committee draft represents a meeting of many divergent minds in respect of this very complex problem," said Vandenberg, at the end of an all-day meeting. "The result is wholly in keeping with the basic concept of the program, and is really a great improvement upon the original formula in many critical aspects."

Favors Joint Organization

The most important "improvement" approved by the committee yesterday was a strong declaration in the preamble in favor of a continuing 16-nation organization and eventual customs union in Europe. This was its language:

"Mindful of the advantages which the United States has enjoyed through the existence of a large domestic market with no internal trade barriers, and

"Believing that similar advantages can accrue to the countries of Europe,

"It is the hope of the people of the United States that these countries, through a joint organization, will exert sustained common efforts which will speedily achieve that economic cooperation in Europe which is esesntial for lasting peace and prosperity.

"Accordingly, it is declared to be the policy of the people of the United States to sustain and

San Francisco, Feb. 13 (AP).—The Chinese Communists acknowledged today they had captured five United States Marines who disappeared Christmas Day north of Tsingtao, and that one had died of wounds.

Kapodistria

(Sisters of two of the captured marines live in Washington.)

This confirmed a report by the Chinese government commandant at Tsingtao shortly after the Americans vanished. United States Naval authorities last Monday said they had no news of the men.

The five enlisted men were on a hunting trip in a jeep when they strayed into territory then occupied by the Communists.

The Communist radio, however, charged they were participating in the civil war on the government side.

The broadcast, heard in San Francisco by the Associated Press, said the Communists had "lodged a strong protest with the American Navy in China, demanding it apologize and guarantee no recurrence of such actions; otherwise the American troops and United States Government will bear full responsibility for the consequences resulting from such action."

The broadcast promised "if the American Naval authorities accept these justified demands, the peoples' liberation army will treat the captured American Marines with clemency in accordance with the spirit of friendship between the Chinese and American peoples."

Berlin Paper Brands Move Device to Bleed Eastern Germany

Berlin, Feb. 13 (AP).—Russia ordered a Soviet model of the British-American economic administration set up in eastern Germany today.

Marshal Vassily Sokolovsky, Russian commander in Germany, directed formation of a 25-member German "economic commission" which parallels the German economic administration set up at Frankfurt for "bizonia."

Spurning repeated invitations to join in the western administration, Sokolovsky likened the Frankfurt organization to a western German state and demanded its dissolution.

Yet, Russian spokesmen declared the Soviet zone commission would not be an "east German government."

Der Abend, United States-licensed Berlin newspaper, said 17 of the 25 members would be named by the Russians and "there now exists the danger that the economic commission will bleed the Soviet zone white."

Der Abend said Russia already had taken "far more than the 10 billion dollars in reparations demanded at Yalta."

Most political observers agreed the move will link eastern Germany closer to the Soviet-dictated economy of eastern Europe. Delegations from Poland and Czechoslovakia already are in east Germany negotiating trade agreements.

The eastern commission is to be composed of a chairman, two subchairmen, three representatives of the Soviet-controlled Trade Union Federation, two representatives of the Mutual Farmers Aid Society, representatives of the five states in the zone and of the directorates of the German central management for eastern Germany.

It was ordered to carry through the plans for reparations deliveries and satisfy the needs of the Soviet occupation forces.

Science Museum in London Ready to Return Wright Plane

The Science Museum in London is prepared to return immediately the Kitty Hawk plane which Orville Wright sent to London in 1928 because of a dispute with the Smithsonian Institution. The plane is the first to fly under power with a man.

Charles Campbell, director of the British Information Service here, said he had been informed by cable the Ministry of Education in London made the announcement there last night.

He quoted this statement:

"The Science Museum (South Kensington, London) is happy to announce its willingness to return the Kitty Hawk biplane to the United States of America at the earliest possible moment following the receipt of a notification from the executors of the late Mr. Orville Wright's estate regarding the home of the machine."

(The executors will make a statement Sunday.)

Orville died at Dayton, Ohio, two weeks ago. His will, dated 10 years ago, left the plane to the British museum, unless before his death he asked its return. It developed he had made the request in a letter in 1943. The British acknowledged the letter.

The plane presumably will go to the Smithsonian Institution here, which has promised it the place of "highest honor, which is its due."

Wright fell out with the Smithsonian in 1918. He believed the museum had detracted from the honor due him and his brother, Wilbur, as the discoverers of the secret of flight.

The institution in 1943 issued a public apology for its "erroneous" statements and the feud was resolved.

The dispute centered around a card describing the Samuel P. Langley Aerodrome as "the first man-carrying aeroplane in the history of the world capable of sustained free flight."

Langley was secretary of the Smithsonian when his "aerodrome" crashed into the Potomac on an attempted take-off a few days before the Wright brothers flew at Kitty Hawk, N. C., in 1903. The Langley plane was greatly modified in 1914 and made a few short flights.

strengthen the principles of individual liberty, free institutions and genuine independence in Europe through assistance to those countries of Europe which participate in a joint recovery program based upon self-help and mutual cooperation.

"Provided that no assistance to the participating countries herein contemplated shall seriously impair the economic stability of the United States."

From its context it was clear that the pledge of "assistance" to free peoples meant economic rather than military help.

Would Charter 300 Ships

Three other changes of importance were approved, as follows:

1. The chartering of 300 surplus merchant ships to Europe was approved, but the Administration's request for the sale of 200 others was rejected, after strenuous protests from shipowners and maritime unions. Chartering was limited to dry cargo ships not in current operation.

2. A new condition was approved, under which the 16 nations must promise "to locate and control," to the extent practicable, the assets and earnings in the United States belonging to their citizens. This pinned down into legislative form the proposals made by Secretary of the Treasury Snyder for locating and prying loose such hidden private assets here.

3. An additional yardstick was provided for deciding whether a given country should get an outright grant or a repayable loan. Originally the Administration insisted that a country's capacity to repay should be the only yardstick. Now the committee has provided that the "character and purpose of assistance" shall also be taken into account. In general, Vanderberg explained, this would mean that permanent improvements and durable goods should be provided by loans, but the language still permits the administrator to provide them as free grants if he thinks a country cannot repay.

Against Taking Title to Money

In spite of much Republican pressure, still to be felt on the House side, the committee rejected any idea of having the United States take sole title to any local currencies the European nations set aside to offset the value of their free gifts from this country. These funds will be disposed of, as the orginal Administration draft proposed, in agreement between each of the recipient countries and the United States.

Vandenberg explained at length why his committee had authorized only 12 instead of 15 months' expenditure. He did not mention the insistent clamor from Republicans in both houses to cut the spending in the coming fiscal year, so as to keep total Government spending within the ceiling fixed recently by a Joint Congressional Committee.

Instead, he said, "the new Congress and the new Administration, whatever it may be, should have the earliest possible opportunity to pass upon the recovery program and its evolution."

Experience Will Teach

Such a review, he said, would have many advantages, as follows:

"In the first place, Congress will then confront the realities of the program and can deal with it on a realistic basis whereas all action at present necessarily is speculative.

"In the second place, a review next January will have the benefit of experience and of the recommendations of the business administrator and his staff, which should be the best possible source of authentic information.

"In the third place, Congress at that time will have the benefit of a report from the joint congressional committee — the 'watchdog committee'—which at that time will be able to report on the success with which the program is being administered and the extent to which the expectations of Congress are being realized. At that time we shall know about the crop year at home and abroad.

"Most important of all, we shall be able to gauge with some reliability the extent to which the 16 participating nations are cooperating on a self-help basis pursuant to the mandate of the bill."

750 Policemen Learn Results Of Tests Today

Results of civil-service promotion rating examinations taken last October by some 750 Metropolitan police were in the mails yesterday to the individual policemen.

Just how good or how bad the grades are will not be known fully for another two weeks, when the new rating list will be announced. The interval gives applicants an opportunity to protest their gradings.

Last published list was drawn up in 1942. The exams, usually held every two years, were suspended during wartime.

Nearly a score of lieutenants, provided for in the new budget requests, are expected to be drawn from the new list. Besides these, at least four captains may be taken from the roll to replace four inspectors expected to retire this year.

Deporting of Baby Is Held Unnecessary

By the United Press

Attorney General Tom C. Clark last night assured Mr. and Mrs. William J. Rebholz, of Chicago that, under immigration laws "there is absolutely no need" for them to send their Italian-born 16-month-old baby to Denmark. The baby was born in Rome of an American father and Danish mother.

The Rebholzs had planned to bring the baby back to the United States under a regular Danish immigration quota after the child had lived with his grandmother for a year. They planned to remain in Chicago.

Snyder Sees Room for Price Adjustments

Atlanta, Feb. 13 (AP).—Secretary of the Treasury Snyder said tonight "there is room for price adjustment in many fields."

"Such adjustments can be made without creating a serious recession," he added, in a speech for the Atlanta Chamber of Commerce and the Association of Stock Exchange Firms.

But the Treasury chief warned that "there is a delicate balance between inflation and deflation," commenting: "Certainly, we do not want an excess of either."

To avert a business slump while "prices are seeking a more stable relationship," he said, "it is merely necessary that we steer our way through the present situation with courage and energetic effort toward the objective of a better-balanced economy.

"We have been working earnestly toward the goal of arresting inflationary pressures. Whether the peak of these pressures has been reached remains to be seen. A careful balance between restraint and encouragement should be maintained."

Snyder said the Truman Administration "believes that Government controls should be restricted to the minimum essential to the full operation of our free enterprise system." He called for "common-sense restraints" by "Government, business and the public together."

The Treasury Secretary said he was "firmly opposed to a hasty tax reduction which would lower our present revenue level" before Congress has completed action on President Truman's proposals for spending $39,700,000,000 in the fiscal year beginning July 1.

Furthermore, he said, a program of revising taxes to "iron out inequities" should be the "first step in changing our tax structure" rather than a slash in rates of present taxes.

The Ohio Senator said in response to questions that he has found on his Midwestern trip a much greater demand for Federal tax cuts than existed a year ago.

"If prices continue to go down," he said, "I should think the demand for tax reduction will be overwhelming."

Canada Will Probe Communist Charge

Ottawa, Feb. 13 (U.P.).—Prime Minister MacKenzie King said in Parliament today that charges by Senator Robert A. Taft (R., Ohio) that Communist members of American labor unions were infiltrating into Canada because of the Taft-Hartley labor law would "receive attention" from the government.

Injured Workman Sues for $25,000

A workman, injured when a scaffold fell, yesterday asked District Court to award him $25,000 damages from the Harwood-Nebel Construction Co., Inc.

According to the suit filed by Attorney Dorsey Offutt, the plaintiff, S. Meredith, 4506 Chase ave., Bhetseda, Md., was permanently crippled as a result of the accident December 4, which occurred in a Howard University building.

Unless She's Paid

Miss Kellems To Stop Tax Withholding

Los Angeles, Feb. 13 (AP).—In defiant terms, Miss Vivien Kellems, Westport, Conn., industrialist, declared today she will no longer withhold Federal income taxes from her employes unless she is paid for it.

She said if "high tariff Harry" Truman wishes her to collect the money he must appoint her an agent for the Internal Revenue Bureau.

"He must pay me a salary for my work," she told the Los Angeles Rotary Club, "and he must reimburse me for my expenses . . . and I want a badge, too. I am not a tax collector and if an American citizen can be fined and thrown into prison for not collecting taxes from his workers, then let's know about it now."

In Washington, an Internal Revenue Bureau spokesman voiced confidence it will collect from Miss Kellems one way or another.

The law provides violation of the tax laws may be punished by $10,000 fine and a year's imprisonment.

only others named in the broadcast were "Privates Dickenson and Hart."

Missing Marines Named

Marine Corps headquarters in Washington on January 9 listed the missing men as Pfc. Charles J. Brayton, jr., formerly of Fort Jay, Governors Island, N. Y.; Pfc. Carrol W. Dickerson of Olathe, Kans.; Pvt. Robert Hart of Pittsburgh, Pa.; Pfc. Thomas Kapodistria of Buffalo, N. Y., and Corpl. William L. Pollard of Fort Worth, Tex.

(A sister of Brayton, Mrs. Caroline Whitmore, lives at 3038 Monroe st. ne., here. She is employed as a clerk-accountant by the National Geographic Society. Her husband said yesterday that Private First Class Brayton, who is 19, has been in China with the Marines for about a year and a half.

Private First Class Kapodistria's sister, Miss Callie Kapodistria, lives at 1601 K st. nw., here. Her brother, she said, is 20 years old and has been in the Marines for two years. He was supposed to return from overseas duty this month. Miss Kapodistria is in the correspondence division of the Civil Service Commission and has been in Washington for the past six months.)

The Communist broadcast mentioned the men were armed only with a rifle apiece, but ignored the hunting-trip angle.

Instead, it charged the Marines "were fighting against the peoples liberation army at a spot over 33 miles from Tsingtao," which was "on the very firing line" where eight Chinese government brigades were attacking the Communists.

The broadcast then detailed a long list of clashes between Communists and various American personnel, going back to October, 1945, alleging in each case the Americans were "aiding Chinese government forces."

Grain Prices Shift Wildly

sumption by armed forces outside the United States.

The price was 4 cents a pound—almost 20 per cent under the price paid last year, $4.96¼, for sugar for domestic consumption.

The wide break in butter, bringing the Chicago wholesale price down to 77 cents, against 89 cents a pound February 4, was credited to (1) hand-to-mouth buying by consumers and retailers, (2) approach of the high-production season, and (3) lower grain prices.

Grain Down 28%

The break in May corn sent the yellow grain down 28 per cent from its high price of January 16, and sent the May future below $2 for the first time in weeks.

On January 16 May corn was $2.70¾ a bushel. Yesterday's close was $1.97¼.

May wheat closed at $2.32, off 75 cents a bushel from the $3.07 it reached less than a month ago—January 16.

The grain market was subjected to buying and selling waves. Shortly before noon two Republican Senators, Milton R. Young of North Dakota and Harlan J. Bushfield of South Dakota, introduced a bill designed to permit increased exports of wheat. Last December, in voting interim aid, Congress decreed that the wheat carryover (reserve) must not be permitted to go below 150 million bushels. A year ago it was only 83 million. The new bill would not limit the carryover.

The two Senators blamed the law for its "bearish effect" on prices. Both are from wheat States, where the price of the bread grain is a ticklish political question.

Grains Shoot Back Up

When the news of their repealer reached the pits, prices, which had dropped the limit in most grains, shot back up, overcoming most of the early loss. The rally was short-lived, however, and from then on prices bounced up and down like a rubber ball.

Secretary of Agriculture Anderson took direct opposition yesterday to remarks by Chairman Jesse P. Wolcott (R., Mich.) of the House Banking Committee, that the recent price drops have done away with need of grain saving controls and restrictions.

A spokesman for Anderson said that the opposite was true. The need for grain conservation, he said, is greater than ever in view of the lower prices.

A study of recent hog markets, he said, has indicated that farmers are beginning to feed much more grain to livestock than they were feeding before January 1.

The result, he said, not only would be a shortage of meat next spring, already predicted, but also may cause a serious shrinkage of grain stocks that may upset all Government export plans.

The average weight of barrows and gilts sent to market in seven large Midwestern stockyards, he said, was less than 219 pounds in October; from 217 to 226 pounds in November; from 229 to 236 pounds in December.

In January the average steadily rose from 245 pounds to 255 pounds last week. Since January 17, the average weight of hogs at the markets has been above the average weight of a year ago.

The Agriculture Department's Livestock Market News yesterday reported a tremendous drop in cattle feeding in Midwestern States. Feeder and stocker cattle sold since June 30 at Chicago, Omaha, Kansas City and St. Paul, the largest markets for feeders, totaled only 487,00 head, against 607,000 a year ago.

These are the cattle that produce the top-grade beef. The reduction is almost 25 per cent in a year.

had done far more business on his "loss leaders," than he wanted. "I really was figuring on a light day," he said, "because trade is usually off the weekend before the bimonthly Federal paydays, and the next one is on Wednesday."

"Reflected Headlines"

"The retail price drops have reflected headlines of market-break news as the consumers and retailers interpreted them," declared Joseph B. Danzansky, counsel for the Merchants and Manufacturers Association's wholesale food division.

"The wholesale price decline hasn't been nearly so great as retail. Some wholesalers are taking losses on their inventories to clear them out, but others are holding back. We don't expect any more sensational drops—unless the demand forces it.

"This looks to us like the real answer to controls—the normal changes of supply and demand."

Robert J. Wilson, executive secretary of the Washington Restaurant Association, viewed the food-price drops as "salvation for the restaurant operator."

"The situation was getting critical for many restaurants here—the customer just couldn't pay any more and the restaurants were caught in the price squeeze," he declared. "The lower food prices should be enough to ease that pressure."

Romania Rejects British, American Treaty Protests

Bucharest, Romania, Feb. 13 (U.P.) — Ana Pauker, Romania's Communist Foreign Minister, rejected British and American protests against alleged peace treaty violations today.

Mrs. Pauker, addressing a packed house in Parliament, declared:

"They claim there is no freedom or democracy here. We can answer them with this: 'We do not care whether you like us or not, but we do care for our people's wishes and appreciation.'

May Wheat Price Drop 54½ Cents Since Feb. 4

Two thugs, one masked with a handkerchief, last night slugged a 63-year-old delicatessen operator into unconsciousness with a length of pipe and robbed him of about $30.

Abraham Raport was found unconscious on the floor of his delicatessen at 640 Columbia rd. nw. shortly after 7 p. m., when, he said, the holdup occurred. He was treated at Garfield Hospital and released. Police said Raport described the robbers as two Negroes, one about 5 feet 7 inches tall.

Police were also investigating the mystery beating of a 39-year-old woman, who reported she was pummeled in her bed by an unknown assailant.

The victim, Mrs. Ann S. Payne, who rooms alone at 914 23d st. nw., summoned police shortly after 6:30 a. m. Taken to Emergency Hospital with fractures of the nose and both jaws and possible skull fracture, she told police she had no idea who beat her.

In an assault and robbery case, two nonpaying fares yesterday robbed Melvin Carroll, 33, cab driver of 322 11th st. se., of his wallet and $9, after using a brick in a paper bag as a persuader.

Carroll, treated at Casualty Hospital for scalp lacerations, told police he picked up two men passengers at 8th and H sts. ne., at [illegible] yesterday. He said he was [illegible] without warning when he [illegible] to let them out at their destination at 53d rd. and E st. se.

U. S., China Suggest U.N. Peace Program

Both Nations Offer Plan to Streamline International Rows

Lake Success, Feb. 13 (AP).—The United States and China suggested formally today the United Nations streamline its procedure for settling international disputes.

The joint proposal, submitted to the Little Assembly, calls for investigation of specific methods to iron out differences between nations before they reach the Security Council or General Assembly.

"Panels from which commissions of investigation might be drawn and panels of conciliators available for use by parties to a dispute," were suggested.

The Little Assembly meets again next Thursday. Topping the calendar is discussion of the situation in Korea, where Russia has refused to allow the entry of a U. N. commission into the northern zone.

It was understood the Chinese-American plan could apply in cases such as those involving fighting in Indonesia and Kashmir.

Nurse Rejoices Guerilla Love Passed Her By

Salonika, Greece, Feb. 12 (Delayed) (U.P.).—An attractive, brunette nurse who claims she was taken from her home by Greek guerillas today told of the luck that saved her from amorous leaders.

Nineteen-year-old Khrissoula Rantsou is held in the grim, centuries-old Byzantine Fortress overlooking Salonika, with 120 other guerillas captured after they shelled the city Tuesday.

Khissoula said she was conscripted nine months ago in Yiannitsa, 35 miles west of here, when rebels found out she was a nurse.

The girl said she was taken to Belles, near the Yugoslav border, where a drafted doctor and one other nurse were runing a small, wood-and-mud emergency hospital.

The work was hard, but she was not molested, Khrissoula said—although, she added, guerilla chieftains usually reserved the right to select any girl they might fancy.

"But I was lucky, I guess," she said.

When the expedition against Salonika was formed, Khrissoula said, "they ordered me with the raiding party."

The raiders were cornered by the Greek army after the Salonika attack, Khrissoula said, and "I surrendered with two other bandits."

Turk Airmen Due Today for Bolling Course

Forty-five Turkish air officers will arrive here today from Turkey for extensive training at Air Force schools and bases, it was announced last night.

The officers will reach Norfolk, Va. today aboard an American destroyer and be immediately flown to Bolling Field, it was said. They will spend from six to 12 months studying radar, communications, maintenance and supply, technical operations and staff work at various USAF stations.

It has been reported that additional military aid for Turkey is planned by the United States, and that if extended most of the money will go into the Turkish air force.

About 150 Turkish naval officers and men now are in training at Norfolk, Va.

Streetcars Injure Boy And Woman

A 60-year-old woman and a 13-year-old boy, pedestrians, were both reported in serious condition last night from separate accidents involving streetcars.

In a third traffic mishap reported yesterday, a 79-year-old woman pedestrian was less seriously hurt when struck by an automobile at 16th st. and Park rd. nw.

Mrs. Mary Green, 50, of 1326 B st. ne., suffered possible fracture of the skull and ribs in collision with the left front of a moving streetcar, at 12th and E. Capitol st., at 7:10 a. m., yesterday. She was admitted to Casualty Hospital.

Police said the streetcar was operated by Jackie Lyerly, 34, of 633 8th st. ne.

In an earlier streetcar mishap, Francis Lane, 13, of 1431 D st. se., sustained severe head injuries Thursday night when, police said, he was struck while running across Pennsylvania ave. se., in the 1200 block. He was taken to Gallinger Hospital with cuts, bruises and possible skull fracture.

Police identified the streetcar operator as Herman H. Simmons, 25, of 1937 Calvert st. nw.

Elizabeth Dikes, 79, of 1610 Park rd. nw., suffered injuries to the legs and right side at 2:20 p. m., yesterday, in the mishap at 16th st. and Park rd. nw. Police said she was struck by an automobile driven by Frieda Barke, 29, of 4014 Kansas ave. nw.

Synthetic Rubber Control Renewed By Harriman

Commerce Secretary W. Averell Harriman yesterday restored wartime controls over synthetic rubber. The main purpose is to permit better distribution to makers of auto tires and other essential items.

The control order was revived on the recommendation of the rubber industry when earlier estimates about the adequacy of synthetic rubber supplies proved in error.

The main result of the order will be that the Commerce Department will apportion synthetic rubber to various manufacturers and control the amount that can be used in each type of product.

Soviet Offers British Huge Machine Order

London, Feb. 13 (U.P.).—Russia has quietly opened negotiations in London for multi-million dollar purchases of British industrial and scientific equipment.

Authoritative Soviet sources said the permanent Russian trade delegation here opened discussions with represeintatives of British industries and the Board of Trade for placing orders within the scope of the agreement.

Soviet experts have been summoned from Moscow to advise the delegation, the sources said.

The biggest order was expected to be placed with the North England locomotive works for 1000 narrow-guage locomotives at an estimated cost of some 30 million dollars.

Maryland Senator Acts to Get Fuel Oil For Virginians

Over 100 farmers in Loudoun County, Va., may get fuel oil through the efforts of a Maryland State Senator and the Maryland fuel coordinator.

William H. Cockerill, Loudoun County farm agent, said 104 farmers in the area had been unable to get oil for several weeks. His appeals for assistance finally reached Senator L. Harold Sothoron of Prince Georges County, Md.

Since most shipments for northern Virginia come from Baltimore, Sothoron appealed to R. S. Castle, Maryland fuel oil coordinator, to aid the Loudoun farmers. Castle said yesterday that as soon as he gets a certified list of the hardship cases from a coordinator in the area and they are approved by a police check, the region will be able to get the necessary oil from dealers in Frederick, Md.

2 Are Held Under Bond In Lottery

Two men were placed under $1500 bond each for grand jury action and a third releasod as innocent bystander in operations here of the Charity Guild Lottery.

United States Commissioner Needham C. Turnage set the bail in the arraignment proceedings yesterday for Ben Goldstein, 39, of 6030 Sligo Mill rd. ne., and Joseph Sturman, 30, of 1859 M st. ne., on charges of setting up and promoting a policy lottery.

Similar charges against Sturman's brother, Albert, 33, of 1226 Queen st. ne. were quashed when it was testified he was merely keeping store for his brother when police raided the delicatessen, Thursday, as lottery headquarters. The store is located at 1220 4th st. nw.

Lieut. Roy Blick, police gaming squad head who led the raid, estimated the organization had peddled $50,000 worth of tickets already for the drawing, scheduled to be held in July. Prizes, he said, totaled $20,000, with top award set at $8000.

The raid was made after undercover men turned ticket-sellers to gain evidence.

Mediation Service Sets Up New Area Including District

The Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service yesterday announced creation of a separate regional office for the District, Maryland, Pennsylvania, Delaware and southern New Jersey.

John T. Daly of 2434 39th pl. nw., director of arbitration for the labor dispute service, will head the new region, with headquarters in Philadelphia. The announcement was made by Director Cyrus S. Ching.

The new region, formerly a part of the New York region, "will provide more adequate handling of work in this highly concentrated industrial area," Ching said.

Daly, who is 48 years old, has been with FMCS since 1938. He recently acted as regional director in both New York and Boston. A graduate of the Georgetown University Law School, he has lived in Washington since 1920.

Editor Killing May Topple Iran Premier

Tehran, Iran, Feb. 13 (AP).—The mystery assassination of a newspaper editor roused political passions here today which some observers said might topple the government of Premier Ibrahim Hakimi.

Mohamad Masood, editor of the weekly, Madridi Emrooz, was shot by unknown persons outside his printing plant late last night.

When relatives started to take the body to the cemetery today a mob of sympathizers seized the body and carried it through Tehran's main streets.

A crowd of about 1000 assembled in Parliament Square and demanded that Hakimi's government find the killers. Orators called Masood "a martyr for freedom of speech and press."

Motorized troops finally dispersed the crowd.

Hakimi offered a reward of $33,000 in his paper last October to any person "or his heirs" who would assassinate Ahmed Qavam, then premier.

Qavam used the U. N. and in direct negotiations with Moscow succeeded in getting Russian troops out of Iran and restoring the government's control over Azerbaijan.

His policy of giving Russia a 50-year oil development right was voided by Parliament and he resigned.

Hakimi was succeeded by Qavam on February 15, 1946. Hakimi then succeeded Qavam last December.

British Called Accessories in 4 Jews' Deaths

Jerusalem, Feb. 13 (AP).—The Palestine government today announced the arrest of a British army sergeant major for investigation in the death of four Jews.

The Jewish Agency charged the British arrested the four Jews at a gunpost last night, carried them into a wholly Arab area and turned them loose. Their bodies were found near Stephens Gate this morning.

The British commander announced he had ordered a "full and immediate investigation." Jerusalem was placed out of bounds for British troops off duty.

Hagana, the Jewish militia, ordered its men to show armed resistance if they should be searched or arrested "unless a Jewish policeman is present during the proceedings."

Palestine's death list since the U. N. partition vote mounted to 1168. Four Jews were killed by snipers in Haifa, one Arab died from last night's Jewish attack on the village of Yazur near Tel Aviv, another Arab was shot at Acre, and a third at Kfar Saba.

Dispatches from Damascus, Syrian capital, said a major Arab attack might come within five days.

(Issa Bandak, mayor of Bethlehem, said in Athens, Greece, the Jewish sections of Palestine would be bombarded "within a few weeks" with guns now en route to the Arab volunteer army.)

Fawzi Bey al Kaukji, commander of the Arab invasion forces, sent his staff to set up a headquarters in southern Lebanon, Damascus dispatches said, and expected to assume personal charge early next week.

More Army Officers Reach Greece for Observer Duty

Athens, Greece, Feb. 13 (U.P.).—Twenty-two more Americans soldiers, including two officers, one warrant officer and 19 enlisted men, arrived today for duty as observers in Greece.

The officers will probably be assigned to the field as advisers to the Greek army. The enlisted men, who are clerks and signal corps men, will large perform administrative tasks. They supplement 20 other enlisted men who arrived two days ago from Germany.

The officers included Col. Temple Holland of Dallas, Tex., and Maj. George Mitchell.

The Greek government executed three Communists today as the prosecution wound up its case in the trial of 62 other leftists, demanding death for 10 of them.

Official reports said the military situation in Epirus in northwest Greece had been generally quiet except for air activity in the Mount Grammos sector.

American aid officials announced nearly one-third of the 75 million dollars worth of imported supplies which remains unused in Greek warehouses for months had been distributed as of January 31.

Va. Bill Seeks State Aid for Cities' Streets

Richmond, Va., Feb. 13 (Spl.).—A bill providing State payment of $300 a mile to cities for the upkeep of certain streets not included in the primary highway system was introduced in the State Senate today.

The measure would authorized the State Highway Commission to allocate and pay all cities and incorporated towns of more than 3500 persons that sum per mile for maintenance and construction of such streets meeting specified standards. It was sponsored by Senators Robert F. Baldwin, jr., Norfolk; Earl A. Fitzpatrick, Roanoke, and Frank S. Richeson, Richmond.

Under the proposed bill, present streets to qualify must have an unrestricted right of way not less than 40 feet in width, with hard surfacing at least 20 feet wide. Streets built in the future would have to have a 50-foot right of way, with hard surface width not under 30 feet.

Other Developments

Other developments in today's session of the General Assembly included:

1. Unanimous passage by the House of Delegates of a much amended bill to ban possession and sale of fireworks in the State. The measure, amended to exempt Roman candles, sparklers, caps for pistols, small firecrackers and pinwheels, now goes to the Senate.

2. Introduction into the House of an emergency rent control bill, in event Federal rent control is not extended by the United States Congress. The legislative act would extend present rent controlling regulations until July 1, 1950, on requests of localities to the Governor.

3. Introduction of a joint resolution in the Senate asking a nine-member study commission to look into the State's declining seafood industry. Two members of the commission would be named from the Senate, three from the House, and the remaining four by the Governor.

Senate Passes Vienna Bill

Bills passed by the Senate today included one relating to incorporation of the town of Vienna, Fairfax County, and the Button-Warren Senate bill designating wedding presents as joint property of husband and wife. Sole dissenting vote to the latter was cast by Senator Lloyd M. Robinette, of Lee County, a bachelor.

A bill by Senator Andrew W. Clark of Fairfax and others would restore the license tax on motor freight carriers to what it was prior to 1946, and also would levy a two per cent gross income tax.

In the House, Delegate George Damm of Arlington introduced a measure to increase the pay for trial justice of Arlington to a $5500 maximum.

Watermen Seek Md. Fisheries Investigation

Annapolis, Md., Feb. 13 (AP).—A full investigation of the Tidewater Fisheries Department was asked today by the Maryland Commercial Watermen Association.

The association urged Governor Lane to name an "unbiased and intelligent" group to look into the department's work.

The request was made in view of "a serious controversy existing among the commissioners of the Tidewater Department," a resolution of the watermen said:

The "controversy" involves commission Chairman John E. Clark and Capt. Amos S. Creighton, commander of the enforcement fleet.

Governor Lane will return tomorrow from Florida.

Md. Trailerites Win in Court

Charges against 14 persons arrested for illegally occupying the Hillside, Md., Trailer Camp were dismissed by Judge Alan Bowie in Upper Marlboro Police Court yesterday.

Judge Bowie acted on the recommendation of Prince Georges County Sanitary Engineer Charles Wood, who swore out the original warrants, after Wood told him that all of the occupants had moved from the camp since the warrants were served.

The action climaxed a bitter controversy centering on the camp, which first was ordered to close down on September 1 because of inadequate sanitary facilities. Most of the 70 occupants defied the original vacation order, but after a series of warnings, all but the 14 who appeared in court yesterday had left when the warrants were served February 5.

Democrats to Meet At Staunton Today

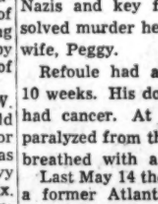
Harrisonburg, Va., Feb. 13 (AP).—The Seventh Congressional District Democratic Committee—headed by G. Fred Switzer of Harrisonburg—will meet in Staunton tomorrow at 11 a.m.

Purpose of the gathering is to decide whether a candidate for Congress shall be nominated by convention or by a primary.

Family Split

Young Bride, Kidnapped, Has New Woe

Blackshear, Ga., Feb. 13 (AP).—Doniver Teston and Sittie, his 14-year-old bride who was carried away by another man 15 minutes after her wedding, said today they still wanted each other.



Mrs. Teston

But Doniver's mother frowned on a reconciliation. Mrs. Teston announced "It's all over now and I don't see no use starting it up again."

Doniver spent last night at his farm home. Sittie, who returned last night, worn and disheveled after a six-day ride about the State with the other man, stayed with her mother on their farm.

The couple was together for several hours and said today they had agreed to live together.

Doniver, in an annulment suit filed three days ago, charged Sittie conspired with James Davis, 22, the man who carried her away last Friday, to get him into a "sham" wedding to prolong an "illicit love affair" between the bride and Davis.

Sheriff L. L. Taylor said he had a kidnaping warrant for Davis, who is still missing.

Doniver charged Davis drove him and Sittie to and from the marriage ceremony. On the way back, they stopped for a soft drink. When Doniver left the car, Davis sped away with Sittie. Davis yelled back "that wedding was for me and Sittie and not for you."

Artist Refoule Dies; Quizzed In Wife's Death

Atlanta, Feb. 13 (AP).—Death early today ended the troubled adventures of Paul R. Refoule, 35, French-born artist, victim of the Nazis and key figure in the unsolved murder here of his socialite wife, Peggy.

Refoule had awaited death for 10 weeks. His doctors told him he had cancer. At the end, he was paralyzed from the waist down and breathed with a metal tube.

Last May 14 the body of his wife, a former Atlanta debutante, was found face up in Peachtree Creek.

Then, police charged Refoule with sodomy and a grand jury indicted him.

Refoule charged police violated his civil rights and sued for $50,000 damages. The sodomy case was dropped November 24.

Federal Judge Marvin Underwood characterized police handling of the case as "highly unusual," and ordered police to leave Refoule alone unless they were ready to arrest him on warrant.

75-Detective Force Hunts Police Slayer

Baltimore, Feb. 13 (AP).—Baltimore's entire force of 75 detectives tonight hunted the slayer of Patrolman Joseph D. Benedict, 39, who was shot down today by a taxicab bandit.

Benedict, father of three, was shot by the passenger in a taxicab he had halted to ask, "Is everything all right?"

Police Commissioner Hamilton R. Atkinson said he had ordered the entire detective bureau to seek a 24-year-old, sandy-haired slayer wearing a long tan topcoat.

Gun Not Drawn

Benedict went down without drawing his gun in a tight space between the taxicab and his prowl car, which had drawn up alongside.

He was felled by a single bullet, which pierced his chest 2 inches below his badge.

Benedict and Sergt. Fred Mann stopped the taxi at 4 a. m. near the Municipal Stadium while tracking down a holdup man who had robbed another cabbie of $16 shortly before.

Benedict got out of the police cruiser and stood at the door of the taxi.

Man Fires One Shot

"Just then the door flew open and the man in the back seat fired one shot, and Benedict collapsed," Sergeant Mann said.

Mann, blocked by Benedict's body, which had fallen against the driver's door of the police car, got out the right side and fired five shots.

Meanwhile the gunman had fled.

Michael J. Kuczak, 29-year-old cab driver, said he was just about to answer "yes" to the policeman's inquiry when his pasenger stuck a gun in his ribs and said, "Keep going, keep going."

The driver said he stepped on the gas and in and out on the clutch. The cab stopped.

Britain Weighs Price Pegs

London, Feb. 13 (NYHT).—Rail fares and coal, electricity and gas prices may be pegged as part of the British government's plan to freeze prices of nearly all nonfood consumer goods, it was reported here today.

Maryland Legion Will Probe Veterans' Housing Problems

Baltimore, Feb. 13 (AP).—The Maryland American Legion today announced plans to conduct a State-wide inquiry into veterans' housing problems.

At the same time, the Baltimore grand jury opened an investigation into charges that veterans here have been cheated by home builders.

Judge Herman M. Moser directed the investigation to "develop fully and completely what the facts really are in the housing situation here in Baltimore."

More than 27,000 veterans here have filed charges their houses have evidences of slipshod construction.

Harry S. Allen, State Legion commander, said his group would act to protect the interests of Maryland veterans whose homes are defective or in violation of local building codes.

These actions came after a Department of Justice spokesman announced in Washington that the department was making investigations in Baltimore, Los Angeles, New Orleans, Dallas and New York.

Roses Not So Red

Well, here it is St. Valentine's Day again, all in the morning betime, but, as we go to press, the only evidence we can discern of the spirit of the occasion is among those politicians who are busily making love to the Presidency. Otherwise, sentimental activity hereabouts seems, if anything, rather below normal for the season. The age upon which we have entered scarcely affords a propitious climate for love in any larger sense of the word. Of course, the immemorial game of youths and maidens continues, with earnest encouragement from stationers, confectioners, florists and jewelers; but even the business of wooing must, to judge by the weather, be in something of a slump.

This perhaps may lead to wonder why an obscure saint whose feast is set at the tag end of winter and frequently occurs, as is the case this year, in the austere season of Lent, should have been chosen as the patron of amorous industry. The answer, of course, is that the tradition became connected with St. Valentine only by chronological accident and had its origin in another climate and in pagan times. There seems little reason to doubt that the activities associated with St. Valentine's Day are romanticized survivals of the rites of the Roman Lupercalia, which took place at this time of year, and are said to have been, among other things, an occasion for matchmaking.

This may or may not have had something to do with the medieval legend that it is on this day that birds choose their mates, which may well be true of the birds in certain southern climes but not, we fancy, of our starlings in Washington—although on both points we hold ourselves subject to correction by our ornithological friends.

Britain's Franks

In choosing a new Ambassador for Washington the British have turned their backs on the career service and selected a man who has distinguished himself in nondiplomatic activity. Such a departure has hitherto been attended by brilliant success. There was Lord Bryce, the political philosopher and historian, and, more recently, Lords Lothian and Halifax. Each in his different way did a salient service to his country. Lord Bryce perhaps limited his circle too closely, for the company he sought and took delight in consisted mainly of American scholars. Lords Lothian and Halifax were more catholic. Both of them cherished and knew America and Americans, and Lord Lothian added to his regard a great knowledge and profound respect for American institutions, seeing in our Federal system a model for other peoples. Both Lords Lothian and Halifax were alike in that they had a deep sense of dedication to their mission.

From what America already knows of Sir Oliver Franks, the Ambassador-designate will bring some of the qualities of all three of these predecessors to Washington. He is a scholar like Bryce, having been a professor of moral philosophy, with chairs at both Oxford and Glasgow. Yet he is more gregarious than Bryce was. With many officials in the Capital he is already acquainted, having been wartime permanent Undersecretary of the Ministry of Supply, where he won a reputation as an administrator. He also presided over the Sixteen-Nation Conference in Paris which responded to the Marshall initiative by producing a European plan for continental revival. The day he got here last September to explain the plan to American officialdom, he appeared before a group, and spoke so lucidly and honestly that the reaction was good and instantaneous. He has the shyness and modest bearing of Lord Halifax, as well as his spare and ascetic frame. And, like him, Sir Oliver delivers himself so mildly and urbanely that the content of his remarks seems meager until it has been pondered. It is an added advantage that Sir Oliver knows this country from the days he served as a visiting professor at Chicago.

Sir Oliver's appointment leaves a vacancy in the chairmanship of Europe's Sixteen. His leave-taking will be a distinct loss in the formation of what may turn out to be the nucleus of an integrated Europe. It is a tribute to the British government's regard for Sir Oliver Franks that it risked this situation. America has an interest with Europe in seeing that a man of Sir Oliver's caliber shall be chosen for this significant office. The man is available, if the European governments have the imagination to turn to him, and he is Premier Spaak of Belgium. He should be enlisted even if the price were a shift of the headquarters of the Sixteen to Brussels. Spaak has the same gift for inspiring harmony while getting on with the job that seems to have marked the chairmanship of the new Ambassador-designate.

Dangerous Meddling

Over the opposition of its chairman, the committee on legislation of the District Board of Education has registered a forceful protest against the O'Konski bill. That bill provides for the appointment by the District Committees of the House and Senate of a District counselor for education to serve as an agent of Congress. This official, who would be entirely independent of the Board of Education, would be empowered to supervise courses and textbooks in history and eliminate "all printed matter, practices, or methods in any manner tending to subvert the spirit and ideals of the Constitution or to breed disrespect for our form of Government." In short, as Superintendent Corning has pointed out, the bill would set up a bureau of censorship of public education in the District, and repeal the authority vested in the Board of Education to determine courses of study in American history and to decide on appropriate textbooks.

Such an attempt to by-pass the Board of Education is not only unprecedented and professionally unsound, it reveals a dangerous trend toward congressional meddling with the District school system. For one of the most important functions of professional educators is the formulation of teaching plans and the selection of textbooks and reading matter. If that responsibility were to be shifted even in part to an appointee of the District Committees it could only be for the purpose of enabling Congress to exercise a form of censorship through that appointee. Not only would the Board of Education suffer loss of prestige and be shorn of important powers, it would be difficult if not impossible for the board to secure the services of supervisory and administrative officials of integrity and high professional standing.

Another feature of the O'Konski bill (as well as the Miller bill which is also under fire) emphasizes the evils of congressional interference with school curricula. It is a proposal to make compulsory a four-year high school course in American history and a two-year course in study of the Constitution. Superintendent Corning declares that such excessive requirements would seriously unbalance the whole secondary school curriculum, make it impossible for candidates for admission to college to meet requirements, and entail such an excessive degree of concentration on the study of United States history as to dull the interest of students instead of inspiring them with enthusiasm for our institutions. Moreover, the requirement of a two-year study of the Constitution for youths in high school is sheer absurdity, since an intensive study of the Constitution obviously calls for mature judgment and a background of general knowledge that high school students lack.

The purpose of both the O'Konski and the Miller bills is to give students a better understanding of American history and imbue them with love for American institutions; in other words, to make them good citizens. That is also the aim of the school authorities. The question at issue, however, is whether decisions about courses and methods of instruction shall be left to professional educators or dictated by politicians who lack the special knowledge and experience required to formulate a well-balanced educational program adapted to the age groups concerned—a program that will develop the critical faculty without destroying faith in ideals that are an essential of good citizenship.

Controlling Communism

A variety of laws has been proposed for dealing with communism. Raymond Moley urged before the Subcommittee of the House Commitee on Un-American Activities the other day that the Communist Party be barred from the ballot and outlawed. The Constitution is rather clear in reserving to the States exclusive jurisdiction over voting procedures and qualifications. Although a dozen States now bar from the ballot the Communist Party or any party advocating violent overthrow of the Government, such laws have been declared unconstitutional in California and Illinois, the only two States where they have as yet been subjected to definitive court tests. Proposals to outlaw the party, either by name or by attributing to it an advocacy of violence which it denies, seem to run clearly counter to constitutional guarantees of free speech, free associations and due process of law.

Other methods suggested to curb Communists range from that recommended to the committee Wednesday by A. A. Berle, that they be required to register as agents of a foreign government, to the ultimate absurdity of Representative McDonough's idea that the practice of communism be declared treasonable. The former proposal involves a transparent begging of the question. The Foreign Agents Registration Act of 1938 requires persons or organizations which "act as an agent of a foreign principal" to register with the Attorney General. Thus the Communists, if they are indeed agents of a foreign principal, are already subject to prosecution without any need for new legislation. If they are not actually foreign agents, no legislative act can make them so. So far as Mr. McDonough's interesting scheme is concerned, it seems indisputable that nothing can be declared treasonable save the overt acts specified in Article III, Section 3, of the Constitution.

Apart from the question of constitutionality, there are considerations of prudence and practicality which militate against all these restrictive proposals. "I would hate," J. Edgar Hoover told a House subcommittee last year, "to see a group that does not deserve to be in the category of martyrs have the self-pity that they would at once invoke if they were made martyrs, by some restrictive legislation that might later be declared unconstitutional." In this connection Arthur Garfield Hays delivered himself of a pungent observation anent the House Committee on Un-American Activities: "I think this committee has done more to build up the Communist Party than anything the Communists could have done in ten years."

It is very much to be doubted, in any case, whether repression of political dissidence is ever effectual. Canada outlawed her Communist Party as a war security measure in 1940 only to have the Communists reorganize as the Labor Progressive Party in 1942. Brazil has lately discovered that outlawry of the party has by no means impaired its operation, that, in fact, the party has been stimulated and expanded. When precious civil rights are at stake, it would be well to ask ourselves if any limitation upon them is genuinely necessary. Our freedom is our strength; it is a necessity, not a luxury.

Disability Pensions

In any revision of armed forces disability pension procedure, it is necessary to keep in mind the necessity for avoiding measures that would make the career service unattractive to high-caliber men. The whole pension and retirement system, for example, is designed to compensate men choosing a military career for the higher salaries they might obtain in civilian pursuits. Concern over possible abuses of disability retirements, as in the Bennett Meyers case, should not be permitted to obscure the real function of the retirement plan.

Secretary Forrestal has proposed what seems to us a sensible reform in the present law. He suggests that disability retirement pay be based on the percentage of actual physical incapacity and that all pensioners be required to undergo periodic reexaminations. He suggests, further, that the tax-free feature of retirement pay include only that portion based on actual disability. Moreover, he advocates placing officers and enlisted men on the same standard for disability retirements. This procedure would in no way affect the normal retirement privileges accruing for length of service—one half of base pay after 20 years and a maximum of three fourths of base pay after 30 years. It would, however, afford a check on those persons holding high-salaried civilian jobs and drawing disability pay at the same time. And it would militate against any tendency to regard disability retirements as a soft touch or racket.

We should like to see Congress go one step further in the direction of flexibility in the retirement system. Though it has not yet been implemented, the Army promotion law passed last year does facilitate the removal of substandard officers. Ouster is automatic when an officer fails to qualify for promotion within a specified period. However, this procedure is cumbersome for dealing with spot cases, since up to seven years may be required before the up-or-out provision can be brought to bear. What the Army needs is an immediate, nonpolitical way to put out to pasture unsuitable officers who, though their conduct is wholly honorable, do not contribute to the efficiency of the military service.

Wedding Inflation

One of the biggest aids to business in recent years has been the wedding boom. Not only has there been a deluge of weddings, but 75 per cent of these have been of the white satin and orange blossom type. Now with the cost of weddings continuing to soar, the bridal industry is getting uneasy about consumer resistance. It currently costs twice as much for a girl to get married with all the trappings as it did four years ago, according to reports at a recent business bridal clinic in Chicago. During the war, it was estimated, the average bride spent around $1500 for wedding finery and home furnishings. Just after the war this figure had risen to $2000. Now it is more than $3000.

Bridal outfitters expect business to be more competitive this year because brides will be fewer—around 1,500,000—it is predicted. A majority of returning veterans have already played their wedding roles. But new marriage candidates keep entering the lists, and from the standpoint of mass consumption at least, the wedding business should be prosperous for several years. For we are in a marrying trend, one which has been under way since the middle 1930's, and to which the war naturally gave impetus. After the first World War the situation was reversed. Despite the prosperity of the 1920's, the marriage curve slowly fell after its temporary upsurge when the boys came home. Trends of thinking and feeling seem to regulate the march to the altar more than does economics.

What effect the high cost of living will have on nuptial pageantry is another question. The desire for an elaborate, traditional wedding has been widespread among brides. A willingness to spend all for the big moment has prevailed, partly as a result of war psychology. Now economic necessity may make wedding processions shorter, bridal finery more practical. It is not likely to bring any return soon to casual marrying at Gretna Greens or before justices of the peace. People aren't in that mood; sentiment is in the saddle. But love is not so blind that it won't examine the price tags more carefully.

FOR A TOO LOVELY LADY

Not for your beauty will the planets halt
To stare from heaven, or the haughty moon.
Nor will the sun stand moveless in the noon.
Time will not prove them guilty of a fault
Who looked upon you and forbore to swoon,
Who would not wreck the heavens to exalt
Your shining excellence. The long assault
Of years will prove them wise, alas, too soon.

Aid to Education

In his letter of February 1 Mr. C. S. Longacre asks "Does the National Catholic Welfare Conference mean to tell us that it no longer fears Federal control of public education just because parochial schools are included in the benefits to be derived from these appropriations?" The answer is no. The policy of the department of education, NCWC, always has been and is now (1) opposition to Federal control of education, and (2) opposition to legislative prohibitions against Federal aid to nonpublic schools.

On the general question of Federal aid there was a change of policy. For many years the NCWC did oppose Federal aid for public and nonpublic schools on the grounds that such aid involved too great a risk of Federal control of education. Later, however, in light of evidence gathered by President Roosevelt's Advisory Committee on Education, which indicated that without Federal assistance some States could not finance a defensible system of schools, the department of education, NCWC, changed its position and recommended Federal aid for needy States. This recommendation was made on the premise that the need for Federal aid in the poorer States, particularly those in the South, outweighed the risk of Federal control.

The department of education was not alone in making this change. A United States Senator, now an outstanding proponent of Federal aid legislation, once shared the NCWC's views on Federal subsidies to education. Apparently his reasons for changing were as legitimate as those of the NCWC.

In a second letter (February 8) Mr. Longacre warns about the "dangerous implications" for any private college or university which accepts Federal aid. The warning is well taken. May I suggest, however, that Mr. Longacre review the position of Dr. McGuire and myself as expressed in our statement of dissent filed with the President's Commission on Higher Education.

There it is said that the wisdom of accepting or rejecting Federal funds is a matter to be decided not by the Government but by the colleges and universities themselves. We had no intention to recommend that the Federal Government compel private institutions to accept Federal funds. To do so would be as dangerous to educational freedom as Mr. Longacre's proposal that the Federal Government refuse to support private institutions simply because they are not under the immediate control of State or local governments.

Too Many Cars

There is no possible "solution" of the current competitive parking and traffic chaos until we reverse the basic mistake of trying to crowd more and more "private locomotives" onto the already overcongested public streets, and tolerate fewer and fewer.

On publicly owned streets public utilities should have priority for the obvious reason that a taxicab accommodates dozens of persons daily, a streetcar serves hundreds, perhaps thousands, whereas a private vehicle serves perhaps only one or two and for one or two hours a day.

In horse and buggy days no one owned a horse and buggy unless he had a barn to keep them in. Today with urban space a thousand times more valuable we maintain the quaint custom of allowing private cars to be stabled on public streets.

It is just as much of an anachronism to retain our obsolete system of individual transportation, in congested urban areas, as it would be to abandon modern methods of municipal street lighting and return to the days when each wayfarer carried his private lantern.

"Veterans' Allowances"

Your February 6 editorial on "Veterans' Allowances" was a study in understatement. Student veterans are not only "being forced to do so much outside work to earn a bare living that they cannot give proper attention to their studies," but many thousands have been forced out of school and many more are staying in at severe expense to their health. Inflation has undermined one part of the GI bill after another. The Republican leadership "meets" the situation by granting a token increase (effective two months hence) which at best may take care of some few marginal cases.

In the high cost areas, where most of the large schools are, $75 per month for a single veteran or $120 per month for a student veteran with two children is completely insufficient for room and board alone. And in rural areas, with greatly swollen school enrollments, there are far too few jobs to go around. It is false economy to give thousands of partial educations at Government expense when a reasonable increase can provide the completed educations so essential to personal and national security.

As to ceilings, what do you think would be the reaction in Congress to a ceiling on salaries and profits in this country? The ceilings on veterans' earnings were established without hearings or debate. They are a gross inequity and wholly inconsistent with the present economic facts of life. The bill passed by the House last week provides some measure of relief. Student veterans all over the country are working for enactment of that bill and the passage of an adequate increase. "Cold" Charity

Apropros the continuing post mortems on the failure of the Community Chest, the community is indebted to one of the Capital's oldest and most distinguished columnists for a perfect simile. Characterizing a prominent political figure, he described him and his approach to public affairs as "cold as organized charity."

In accounting for the failure of the Community Chest, two causes have either been overlooked or ignored. To begin with the public is jaded with the continual series of "drives." And then, referring to our columnist, there was very little heartbeat in this as in other "drives." Too much organization and too little actual charity as that word has signified down the centuries.

Charity, the Latin caritas, is synonymous with love. It cannot be cold. It is the complete opposite of smugness, complacency, self-righteousness, and personal publicity. No "drive" can possibly give it appropriate expression when conducted as a drive.

May this not be a basic fault in modern United States thinking, a fault which, fertilized by a plethora of advertising and selling, has grown with the years until now it is an obsession? Have we not confused bigness with goodness, substituted quantity for quality? The unending series of "drives" from one year's end to another's connote the herd mind and rely upon herd reactions. Intelligent human beings don't want to be "driven."

During half a century of foreign residence and travel I have found that no United States charitable enterprise is so generally respected and even beloved as those of the Society of Friends (Quakers). These enterprises were conducted without advertising, elaborate organizational luncheons, personal publicity, and the salaried personnel attendant upon most of our "drives." In their conception, origin, and throughout their voluntary ministrations they were never cold.

"Tax Timing"

I have concluded from your February 4 editorial, "Tax Timing," that, as you say, inflation is the number one national problem and although we may be able to afford tax reduction in terms of our commitments, we cannot afford it in terms of the possibility of adding fuel to the fire of inflation

I am concerned about the rising cost of living and am as anxious as everyone else to do everything possible to halt the present inflationary trend. But what concerns me most—and it is an integral part of this problem—is the difficulty in accumulating substantial savings for the future security of my family—as protection against the rainy day that everyone predicts will follow the present "boom."

With taxes taking a good share of what I had hoped to put aside, I find myself unable to accept your theory that the Government must permanently deprive me and my family of a considerable portion of my income as the only way of combating higher prices. This solution almost completely disregards the problem of providing for the future.

I would like to suggest another solution to the problem which appears to satisfy the anti-inflationary requirements and yet provides for the rainy day. Taxes should "ostensibly" be kept at the present high level, but a certain portion of the taxes contributed by the individual (perhaps that portion equivalent to the proposed tax reduction) should be set aside for that individual in the form of future savings. This could be in the form of Government bonds, future tax allowances, increased Social Security, etc.

I would like to emphasize the point that tax reduction in any form is not favored if ruled out by the ERP and repayment of the national debt or other requirements in the best interest of the national economy. But if income tax reduction will inevitably be passed by the present session of Congress, the alternative presented herein would be the lesser of two evils.

DAVID Z. BECKLER.

Reading your editorial of February 4, one might assume that this money paid in as taxes disappears from circulation. Of course, it does not. Every cent collected by the Government is spent by the Government, and accordingly goes into circulation. On the other hand, the producer may spend or save that part of his income left to him after payment of his taxes. The producer may be frugal. The Government never is.

If we cut our taxes, get rid of useless boards, bureaus and commissions, dismiss hundreds of useless Government employes, who produce nothing, and send them back to productive labor, there will be just as much, if not more, national income, and fewer dollars in circulation. The producers will have more money for venture capital, thereby creating more jobs for productive labor, and in all probability, greater production, which will bring the dollar and goods more evenly into balance. Drones eating tax money produce nothing. But the tax money dished out to them is in constant circulation.

Preventing World Bust

Buying Foreign

MANY PERSONS who are taking to heart the urgent need of getting more dollars into Europe and other foreign areas are wondering what they can do about buying foreign goods.

Despite recent tariff reductions and the devaluation of the franc, they find foreign-made articles in the shops usually priced beyond their means. Yet they know that their own American economy is vulnerable so long as exports run around 14 billion dollars annually, imports only 5 billion.

They know that exports are bound to drop—some already have and others are slated for a decline this spring—because of lack of dollars among buying nations. Any big drop in exports would mean widespread unemployment here—with appropriate gloatings by the Kremlin.

One reason foreign goods remain high is because of their high production costs. That is especially true in inflation-ridden France. Shipping and insurance charges also run up prices. And many articles are still under tariff schedules, even though some of these have been reduced.

FOR EXAMPLE, the handiwork of British housewives that Lady Reading is now showing in this country as a part of England's export drive sells here at a price about double what it is priced in England. That is because of shipping, tariff and retail charges.

Yet British housewives who laboriously made these quilts, children's dresses, wool rugs, were buoyed up by the expectation that the dollars their products brought in would help their country meet its economic crisis.

Meanwhile American exporters, together with the Department of Commerce, are warning that this country must import more if it is to survive economically. How can the ordinary American help in this?

A few foreign goods are dropping a little in price as a result of the new tariff agreements. One large hosiery manufacturer recently announced a 25-cent reduction on British wool socks. Some imported liquors are down. Other foreign goods are expected to drop as production increases—it is already up in Britain, France, Italy, Belgium—and as foreign manufacturers learn how to play to the American market. Some of these manufacturers are now in the United States studying marketing methods and consumer needs.

One leading importer points out that for the present the best import prospects are for products outside the textile field, particularly glassware and chinaware. Good merchandise in these at fairly reasonable prices is reported coming in. A large supply of bulbs and flowering plants will come from the Netherlands. Tropical agricultural products will help the Latin-American dollar shortage. French perfumes are still costly, but they go a long way and they help get dollars and economic strength into a France that is a strategic area in this country's foreign policy.

PROBABLY the chief short-range hope of dollar-starved countries lies in the American tourists they are expecting this summer. In France, at least, these are expected to spend more freely, since with devaluation of the franc they can get more for their money.

Importers are confident there will be better bargains in imports available here as foreign producers improve their methods and become more familiar with American tastes. The average consumer here, by keeping a lookout as to where he can "buy foreign," within his means, of goods he needs, should be able from now on to help in some measure to stabilize world trade and build a foundation for peace.

He can also help increase imports by using his power of citizenship to get further tariff reductions. Tariffs go up in proportion to high valuations on imported merchandise and are reflected in inflated retail prices. No big flow of imports can be expected unless the reciprocal trade program is continued and strengthened.

Antimilitarist Policy

Perhaps the happiest people anywhere, as a result of the Soviet's stupid and stubborn behavior, are our militarists. They've found it easier to influence wide areas of American opinion on that account. If the present Russian regime did not exist, our militarists would still try to frighten us into accepting militarism, so that their power and prestige might be perpetuated.

We've reached the point where only the boldest, least traditional action offers us hope of achieving a constructive peace-promoting foreign policy. Therefore, we must repudiate militarism completely, and renounce unconditionally our so-called right to wage war. Having done this, we should immediately recommend to the United Nations the formation of an international constabulary, recruited from local and national law enforcement agencies throughout the world—not from military establishments—for use against individuals, not countries.

At the same time, we should issue a continuous appeal, by every available channel of communication, urging all people to follow our example. We should also institute an international relief program, administered by universally trusted and respected organizations like the American Friends Service Committee. Incidentally, chances are that the need for such relief will lessen appreciably once the crushing economic burdens of maintaining huge armaments are lifted.

Washington Calling

By Marquis Childs

Legislative-Executive Split

WASHINGTON. — Now the clamor of politics grows louder and louder, it might be well to stop for just a moment and look at the fundamental fault that bedevils everything the Government undertakes. In that connection let's look back at a significant date.

Childs

On November 5, 1946, the American voters, exercising their inalienable right, elected Republican majorities in both the Senate and the House. Clearly this was a profound change after 14 years of Democratic rule. But the way in which this change would work to complicate and slow down every act of Government was scarcely realized at the time, except by a few.

On November 6, Senator J. William Fulbright (D., Ark.) was asked to comment on the outcome of the elections which had displaced his party in the Congress. He replied by suggesting that President Truman should resign so that a Republican might take his place and thereby restore harmony and the possibility of decisiveness to the Government.

FULBRIGHT IS a student of government with a thorough knowledge of how the American system works and how it doesn't work. He can have had little or no expectation that the President would follow his advice. But he chose this means of dramatizing the stalemate that he could already see on the 1947 horizon.

For his pains he was generally abused. His suggestion was taken as impugning Mr. Truman's courage. Within his own party there was a tendency to ostracize him. And Mr. Truman took the occasion of a Gridiron dinner to rap Senator Fulbright on the knuckles for his audacity.

In the light of what has happened since then, this reaction seems a little silly. How much more courage it would have taken for Mr. Truman to step down, recognizing the inherent flaw in our system of divided powers. He would thereby have created a precedent which could have had the most far-reaching influence on American development.

The President would have made a place for himself in history such as few Presidents occupy. As things are going today, his record will not be the brightest in the presidential book.

Even from the point of view of practical politics, the Democrats might now be in a stronger position.

The Constitution requires that a presidential election be held every four years. Those dates roll around regardless of war or peace or the imminent threat of war.

It was no accident that Hitler started his war of world conquest on the eve of 1940 and subjugated Europe in the spring of that presidential year. The Nazis were convinced we would be so paralyzed by indecision that they could safely ignore us as a factor. And they were very nearly right. You can be sure, too, that the master planners in the Kremlin now know what year it is.

ON THE AVERAGE of one out of every three years, the divided powers of our Government are split between the two major parties. The result is stalemate, and that is no secret from the rest of the world.

If the European recovery program is approved in a workable form, it will be thanks to two facts that override even the inherent divisiveness of the split Government we live under.

First is the fact that a remarkable range of opinion has swung behind the program—opinion so articulate and so representative that it cannot be disregarded. And second is the stature of the two men who have had the most to do with the program—Secretary of State George C. Marshall and Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg. But nevertheless there is no guarantee that a workable plan will be adopted.

On other vital policy matters, paralysis or confusion are the rule. Congress and the Executive are engaged in trying to blame each other for prices, speculation, and now the commodity decline. And anyone who thinks the tragedy of Palestine, where so many vital interests are concentrated, will not be exploited in this political year is naive beyond belief. Even on such an elemental matter as tax collection, the two branches fall out, and so this process fundamental to government is impeded. So it goes in every department.

The remedy? A constitutional amendment could cure it by insuring that executive and Congress could not be divided between opposing parties. Such an amendment would be a major step in the right direction. But the process of amending the constitution seems, like the gear of a motor long untouched, to have become frozen in disuse.

You sometimes hear talk about "rising above politics." But that is too much to expect from human nature in this political year, and we should realize that the fault is not with the politicians but with a defect in our political system.

Grain Crash

By Mark Sullivan

1948 Contrasted With 1929

IN THE outpouring of interpretations of the crash in grain prices this month, two dates are frequent. One, February, 1948, is obvious. Second in the attempts at interpretation is October, 1929. Discussion of the present crash, and speculation of what it may mean for the future, seek light by comparison with the crash of 1929.

Sullivan

But the light is not clear. There are similarities between the two, and also differences. What is here attempted is a brief statement of the conditions, then and now, with respect to some groups composing the economic structure, and factors determining economic trends.

Industry as a whole—In this field is over-all contrast. Today there is postwar shortage of goods of nearly all kinds. Housing is a conspicuous example. In 1929 the shortage of goods following the First World War had been filled. The housing shortage had been met as early as 1927, and falling off in the building industry was a factor in the collapse of 1929.

Employment—In 1929, due to completion of the postwar stimulation of industry, there was a measurable amount of unemployment. Today employment is at an all-time high.

FARMING—In 1929 farming was a cruelly depressed industry. Ten to 12 years before, during World War I, there had been an immense rise in prices of farm land, feverish speculation in it. Midwest farms of which the normal price was $100 an acre had gone as high as $600. Then, following the end of the war, about 1921-22, there had been a drastic drop, leaving farmers under the burden of large mortgages at high rates of interest, which they had given in the buying of farms. With the price drop in farm land had gone a drop in farm crops. This double distress was the condition of farming in 1929.

In contrast, farming today is a prosperous, strongly buttressed industry. There has been little speculation in farm land, no great rise in the price of it, and little giving of mortgages. As for farm crops, they are at all-time high prices. In part, these high prices are accounted for by a Government policy of price support for farm products adopted during the 1930s. What may be the future affect of price support in its bearing on the country's economy as a whole, if it is kept, remains to be seen. The present existence of it is one of the chief contrasts between 1948 and 1929.

LABOR—In 1929 the ability of labor unions and leaders to get higher wages was as it had normally been. Since 1929 this has been altered by two laws. The Wagner National Labor Relations Act of 1935 gave unions and leaders immensely increased power in bargaining, made it difficult for industry to resist. This accounted in large part for postwar wage raises, in 1945-6, which brought wage levels to all-time highs.

This power of unions and leaders in bargaining was modified by the Taft-Hartley Labor Law of 1947, which gives employers a degree of power to resist wage demands if they choose. If new wage raises now contemplated take place, whether because industry does not resist or otherwise, this will be a factor making for contrast with 1929 and having weight in the future.

The stock market—Here is utter contrast. In 1929 the stock market was at fantastic heights. Histories of the period, such as Mr. Frederick Lewis Allen's Only Yesterday, include reproductions of stock market pages in newspapers of late 1929, just before the collapse, in which prices over $300 a share were not uncommon. Today, far from boom, prices on the stock market are comparatively depressed.

Public psychology—In 1929 the public was boom-minded, while today it is antiboom-minded. The 1929 public psychology was one of the great popular illusions of history comparable to the classic Mississippi Bubble and the Tulip Craze. The mass optimism was shared by some business leaders and some academic authorities on economics, and their belief fed that of the public. A professor in a leading university spoke of "a permanently high plateau." A phrase popularly current, expressing exuberant optimism of the day, was, "Be a bull on America." The present anti-inflation-mindedness of the public is perhaps the country's best buttress against economic disaster.

A balding Chicago man—who is under two jail sentences—proved yesterday that you don't have to have a lawyer in the Supreme Court.

You can, like Harrison Parker, argue your own appeal. He treated the court to a burst of old fashioned camp meeting oratory that brought smiles now and then. But not laughs—for his points went home, and the justices asked his opponent sharp questions about them.

Parker told the court that the Illinois courts ordered him to show cause why he should not be ordered to produce certain papers. By way of answer he filed the papers in court. They were resolutions of the Puritan Church—of which he is chancellor—accusing Col. Robert R. McCormick, Joseph Medill Patterson and others of bribing judges, railroading innocent people to jail and other crimes. The resolution suggested that they be hanged or shot. For filing the papers, Parker got three months, for contempt of court.

Got Six Months' Sentence

Parker got another six months for contempt, for writing a Chicago grand jury a letter, offering to give evidence that Colonel McCormick's Chicago Tribune company beat the State and county out of 100 million.

Nervous but game, the Chicago man strode to the bar yesterday in the striped pants and cutaway that all lawyers wore in the high court a few years ago, but which now are affected only by Government counsel. From a thick pile of notes he read off court decisions and testimony just like any lawyer. But unlike most lawyers, he wagged his fingers at the justices, slapped his hands together to drive home his points and stepped back from the reading stand from time to time, so he would have room to gesture, with one arm or both. Mostly, it was both.

Why, said Parker, did the Illinois court ask what cause he had for not producing the papers, if the court didn't want them produced? And when he did produce them, how could he be jailed for doing so?

Cites His Rights

And wasn't it his duty to tell the grand jury what he knew—or believed—about a crime having been committed? How could he be jailed then for that?

William C. Wines, assistant attorney general of Illinois, ran into a storm of questions when he rose to answer Parker. Wines claimed that under Illinois law, Parker's two jail terms were right and proper. Once, feeling that the harried attorney had covered the ground, Justice Frankfurter asked why he did not sit down.

The decision probably will bring more Supreme Court discussion of the Illinois legal system, which was roundly attacked by several of the justices a few months ago.

'Brass' Given New Order On Comments

By John G. Norris
Post Reporter

Defense Secretary Forrestal yesterday made public an order to the armed forces requiring all "controversial" public utterances by high ranking Army, Navy and Air Force officials to be submitted to him for prior approval.

The order, reported exclusively in The Washington Post yesterday is intended to stop recent public bickering between the services over such matters as the relative importance of air power and sea power.

Some recent speeches and magazine articles, Forrestal declared, are "inimicable to the true spirit of unity in the armed forces."

The order, however, was received with misgivings in some Government quarters. It was feared that it might result in withholding from the public important information about conditions in the armed forces which require correction.

Forrestal said the directive applied to all speeches and articles as well as prepared testimony to be presented to congressional committees.

"It is intended to promote a closer and more harmonious integration of the armed forces by preventing the inevitable differences of opinion about policy matters from becoming topics of public debate and controversy," he stated.

One of the recent articles cited by officials and mentioned in The Washington Post yesterday as having aroused resentment in naval circles was one by Air Force Secretary W. Stuart Symington in American magazine. A spokesman for Symington declared last night that the article in question had actually been "cleared" with Forrestal's office though no requirement then existed that it be submitted.

The order applies to Army Secretary Kenneth C. Royall, Navy Secretary John L. Sullivan, and Symington, as well as their Undersecretaries and Assistant Secretaries. Among the uniformed personnel, it refers to Army Chief of Staff, Gen. Omar N. Bradley, Chief of Naval Operations Admiral Louis Denfeld, and Air Force Chief of Staff, Gen. Carl A. Spaatz, with their top deputies.

Prosecutors End 2 Cases Against Nazis on Trial

Nuernberg, Germany, Feb. 13 (U.P.).—The prosecution asked an American military tribunal today to "judge with firmness" a group of 24 "hand-picked fanatics" charged with participating in the murder of more than one million Jews, Russians and gypsies.

In another war crimes trial, the prosecution closed its case against 13 former Nazi Elite Guard officials and an alleged woman accomplice charged with genocide and forceful Germanization of conquered populations.

The chief defendant of the 24, SS. Maj. Gen. Otto Ohlendorf, former chief of the security police, admitted he liquidated approximately 90,000 Jewish men, women and children with gas and machine guns in one year in Russia.

The Gallup Poll

Increase in Minimum Wage To 75 Cents Favored 2 to 1

By George Gallup
Director, American Institute of Public Opinion

Princeton, N. J., Feb. 13.—Two out of three voters believe Congress should pass legislation raising the minimum wage for workers to 75 cents an hour from the present level of 40 cents.

President Truman in his State of the Union speech last month urged the lawmakers to take this step. Last May a bill embodying the proposal was introduced in the House by Representative Gerald W. Landis, Indiana; it is now in the House Committee on Education and Labor.

Representative voters in every State were interviewed by institute field reporters and asked this question:

At present the minimum wage that can be paid to workers in every State, in most businesses and industries, is 40 cents an hour. This means that all persons working in such businesses, in every State, including young people who have never worked before, cannot be paid less than 40 cents an hour. Would you approve or disapprove of raising this minimum to 75 cents an hour?

The vote:

Raise minimum wage	66%
Dont raise	29
No opinion	5

The proportion of voters wanting something done about boosting minimum wages has remained steady during the past two years. In March, 1946, when the proposed increase was only to 65 cents an hour, an identically worded question resulted in virtually the same percentage as today's poll.

Since that time the public has watched food prices mount and seen organized labor obtain two rounds of wage increases, all of which probably tends to confirm the average voter's view toward wage minimums.

Farmers and professional and business people give the proposed boost the least hearty support, while manual workers vote better than 5 to 1 in approval. Union members, whose wages in general are above minimums, are even more strongly in favor than unorganized workers. Seven out of 10 Democratic voters approve, as compared with 6 out of 10 Republicans.

One-third of the voters feel that a beginner's earnings these days should be between 75 cents and $1 an hour. This is revealed in the answers to a different question asked of a comparable cross-section. These voters were asked:

What would you say the minimum wage per hour should be today for a single person, just graduated from high school, and starting out at a beginner's job in a factory in this area?

The answer:

Less than 40 cents	1%
40 cents to 75 cents	39
75 cents to $1	35
$1 or over	18
No answer	7

When asked to give the main reason for the figure they mentioned, most voters named the current high costs of living.

McCarthy's Housing Measure To Stress Private Enterprise

By Mary Spargo
Post Reporter

Senator Joseph R. McCarthy (R., Wisc.) told The Washington Post last night, he expected to present a full draft of a long-range housing bill before the Joint Committee on Housing early next week.

McCarthy said his measure will not include any provisions for public housing but will emphasize encouragement to private enterprise to build low-cost rental housing. As a stimulus in this field, the bill will provide for a yield insurance plan coupled with income tax considerations to attract private capital.

The McCarthy measure is entirely different from the Taft-Ellender-Wagner bill which was approved nearly a year ago by the Senate Banking and Currency Committee and subsequently pigeonholed.

Parts of the first two titles in the measure sponsored by Senator Robert A. Taft (R., Ohio) have already been incorporated in various pieces of legislation which have already been enacted by Congress.

The yield insurance plan, backed in general terms by AMVETS, differs considerably from that proposed in the TEW bill.

Bill Encourages Cities

McCarthy said he believed that one of the most important parts of his bill is the definite encouragement given to cities to eliminate restrictive building codes.

The long-range slum clearance plan the Wisconsin Senator advocates is based in part on the principle of public works to which both the Federal Government and the local governments contribute.

If the Joint Committee approves the McCarthy measure, it is likely to become known as the McCarthy-Gamble bill.

Presumably committee approval would mean that Chairman Ralph Gamble (R., N. Y.) would sponsor it in the House and McCarthy in the Senate.

Taft Amendment Seen

Although the measure will go before the Senate without a provision for public housing, it is believed likely that Taft will offer an amendment to provide for low-rent public housing.

Taft is reported to be ready to revise the original plan for public housing he advocated in the TEW bill.

It is considered probable that the Republican leader will provide for cities to meet part of the cost, and will insist that those cities receiving Federal aid eliminate restrictive building code practices.

UAW Raises Pay Demand At Chrysler

Detroit, Feb. 13 (AP).—The CIO United Auto Workers came up today with pay demands against Chrysler Corp., exceeding 35 cents an hour.

The figure is 5 cents higher than that adopted recently by the union's top policy committee and approved by its international executive board.

UAW delegates from 14 Chrysler plants set forth the demands in a resolution approved by the union's national Chrysler conference.

These are the demands voted by the conference in behalf of 70,000 Chrysler workers:

1. A 30-cent hourly flat wage increase.
2. Social Security benefits—hospitalization, medical benefits, etc.—previous estimated to cost an additional 5 cents an hour.
3. An "adequate" pension plan.
4. Improved vacation provisions.
5. A guaranteed weekly wage.

Ewing Praises Parran Shift

By the United Press

Federal Security Administrator Oscar R. Ewing said yesterday that the replacement of Dr. Thomas Parran as Surgeon General of the United States Public Health Service was a "morale-building move" in line with the service's policy of rotating the top job.

The change-over drops Parran from the rank of major general to colonel, with a resulting salary cut, in accordance with the reduction in rank.

"If you don't rotate the job, you kill the ambition of the men in the service," Ewing told a press conference.

Earlier President Truman asked the Senate to approve his nomination of Dr. Leonard A. Scheele—Assistant Surgeon General and director of the National Cancer Institute—to succeed Parran when his term expires in April. Parran became Surgeon General in 1936.

Ewing, who is Parran's immediate superior, paid tribute to the incumbent Surgeon General's "wonderfully outstanding work." He said, however, that Parran's record had to be weighed against "the consideration of morale in the service."

He said Parran would remain in the service and would continue to represent the United States on the interim commission of the World Health Organization.

One on the Aisle—

Interrogation Point

A Quiz Session About Westerns

By Richard L. Coe

IDLE THOUGHTS OF A MAN watching the Metropolitan's "Albuquerque":

With its sky a deep sea-green, do you suppose Cinecolor might make a picture titled "Saratoga Bunk" in which horses would munch blue New York State grass?

What would the Governor of Kentucky say to the Governor of New York?

Isn't it grand the way the gay night spots in Western pictures are always open, places where it's possible to down 14 slugs of rye, pick up a companion and lose a fortune at cards by 9 in the morning?

How do they make women's period costumes, any period at all, look like something from Garfinckel's corner window?

What has Randolph Scott ever done to deserve having absolutely no hips whatever?

Who do you suppose first thought up the line: "I've got some private business to attend to?"

Haven't Randolph Scott and Catherine Craig ever heard of the Western movies' rule that the hero never gives the heroine such long kisses?

Isn't it encouraging that no matter how evil a woman can be in a Western she always reforms, either on her deathbed or, as Barbara Britton does in this, because she's found True Love?

Can there be something in numerology that makes beavers of people named Hayes?

Do you suppose Randolph Scott's burning of that picture of Gabby Hayes, which he swears is without whiskers, has anything to do with the fact that, though you see pictures of Lincoln without his whiskers, you never do see any of Rutherford B. Hayes without his?

Can it be you're losing your eyesight if, at the exciting finale of all this New Mexican strife between good and evil, you can't count whether it's a 10-mule team Scott is driving down the mountain or an eight-mule team?

Do you suppose any reviewer in this land of the free has been able to contribute one new sentence in the last decade to a discussion of pictures like "Albuquerque?"

THE MOUNT VERNON PLAYERS' production of "Deirdre of the Sorrows" makes more sense than sound, which shows unnecessary daring for the production of an Irish play . . . Personally, when this department goes to an Irish play it expects to relish the music of the words and not have a clew as to what's going on . . . It would be too much to expect, of course, to ask for foreigners, as most of us are when it comes to authentic Irish, to manage the lyrical lilt of pure Celtic, but the rhythm of the words is the essence . . . It's not all the players' fault, to be sure, but solemn declamation isn't the route to John Millington Synge's legendary romance . . . Huldah McNinch, however, has done some imaginative things with her projected scenery for this production, which will remain on the stage at 900 Massachusetts ave. through February 25.

"ALBUQUERQUE" Paramount release of a Clarion production, screen play by Gene Lewis and Clarence Upson Young from a novel by Luke Short. Photographed by Fred Jackman, Jr. Directed by Ray Enright. Music by Darrell Calker. At the Metropolitan.

A., B. & W. Bus Fare Increase Postponed to Permit Hearing

An increase in fares proposed by the Alexandria, Barcroft & Washington bus line, scheduled to go into effect today, has been suspended by the Interstate Commerce Commission pending an investigation and hearing.

In another suburban bus fare case, ICC Examiner Henry C. Lawton held a hearing yesterday on a petition by the Washington, Marlboro & Annapolis Motor Lines, Inc., for an increase from 10 to 15 cents in the fare between Washington and Coral Hills and Hillside, Md.

The only person appearing at the hearing besides company officials was Tobias E. Levow, Patent Office examiner representing himself and the Hillside and Coral Hills Citizens Associations.

7300 Fares a Week Affected

The hearing was continued until next Thursday to allow Levow to study statements made yesterday by company spokesmen.

Estimates by James W. Tanner, secretary-treasurer of the WM&A, indicated that about 7300 passengers a week would be affected by the fare increase between Washington and the Maryland points.

President Leslie L. Altmann of the company declared bills for gasoline, tires and parts are more than two months in arrears because of the company's financial condition. The bus line lost about $35,000 last year, he said.

A hearing in the AB&W rate increase request will probably be held March 10, an ICC spokesman said yesterday.

5-Cent Fare Hike Proposed

The rates proposed by the bus line, which runs between Washington and Arlington and Alexandria points, would be 15 cents cash or tokens at 8 for one dollar in the present 10-cent zones. Also, the company would eliminate the use of the tokens in the 15-cent zones, as allowed at present. The 15-cent cash fare would remain the same.

The increase would have gone into effect automatically today on AB&W buses, except for a protest filed by Thomas F. Kilroy, 15 Masonic View ave., Alexandria, on behalf of himself and eight other bus riders.

$48,000 Asked In Suit Over Discrimination

A Washington Negro woman yesterday filed a $48,000 damage suit in Alexandria District Court, charging illegal racial discrimination in National Airport dining rooms.

Complainant Mrs. Helen Nash, 1330 13th st. nw. listed as defendants Theodore P. Wright, administrator of Civil Aeronautics; Air Terminal Service, Inc.; Eastern Air Lines, Inc.; Attorney General of the United States, United States Attorney for the Eastern District of Virginia.

Mrs. Nash stated that on February 17, 1947, mechanical difficulty delayed a flight. She said the airline sent her and other passengers to the dining room to eat at company expense.

Officials of ATS, which has the concession to operate airport dining rooms, refused to serve her. She asked $38,000 from ATS for humiliation and illegal action, and $10,000 from Eastern Air Lines for sending her to the dining room without warning of what would happen.

Though the airport is subject to Virginia laws, Mrs. Nash charges state segregation laws cannot apply there because the airport is engaged in interstate commerce.

A Civil Aeronautics spokesman pointed out that a bill is now pending in Congress to stop such segregation. Counsel for ATS said the dining rooms are not engaged in interstate commerce and are governed by Virginia law. He pointed out dining rooms are provided for Negroes.

Attlee Calls Sovietism 'Inverted Czarism'

Oxford, Eng., Feb. 13 (AP).—Prime Minister Attlee said tonight communism "has turned its back on civilization."

He told the University Labor Club that communism, as practiced in Russia, was "inverted czarism."

There is no chance, he said, the British Labor party might cooperate with the Communist Party.

Wine Truck Upsets, But No Free Drinks

Annapolis, Md., Feb. 13 (AP).—A wine truck upset on the Ritchie Highway today, but there were no free drinks.

Anne Arundel County police said a Savoia Wine & Liquor Co. truck skidded and turned on its side near Brookwood Farm.

Equine Error

One Drink More, And He's Down

A Falls Church, Va., horse that didn't know when he'd had enough left his barn about 4 a. m. yesterday to look for another drink.

It took two hours and the combined efforts of about 15 men from the Volunteer Fire Department, the Police Department and the Street Department, as well as a wrecker's crane, to get the "tippler" on his feet again later in the day.

The fallen equine belongs to David Leonard, a farmer who lives on the Leesburg Pike, about a mile beyond the Falls Church line.

Police traced his movements from his barn to a creek about 300 feet away, which flows in a 15-foot gully.

A crane, brought to the scene and operated by Burton Davis of Ralph Davis & Sons, Falls Church scrap metal firm, finally extricated the animal after firemen slipped a sling around him. Davis refused payment.

The horse received a few cuts from wire in the gully. He returned to the barn under his own steam and vowed he wouldn't do it again—until the next time, probably.

20 Top Japs Cleared Of War Crimes Guilt

Tokyo, Feb. 13 (AP).—Major war crimes charges against 20 top crust Japanese, including five former members of the Tojo cabinet, have been dropped.

A high authority said tonight Washington accepted recommendations of Chief Prosecutor Joseph B. Keenan that the current trial of Hideki Tojo and 24 other wartime leaders wind up the international proceedings.

Keenan departed by air for the United States today, leaving aides to finish the Tojo trial.

5 Vehicles Collide in Turn In Fog Pocket Near Baltimore

By The Associated Press

All of this happened in a fog pocket which settled down on a stretch of the Washington-Baltimore boulevard on the outskirts of Baltimore:

Herbert E. Piper, 33, 2024 37th st. se., was driving south when he hit the heavy murk late Thursday night. He slowed down quickly. A big tractor trailer freighter driven by Diamond D. Kiefer hit him from behind. They called police.

Patrolmen Robert Mullikin and Melvin Hovermill of the Halethorpe police answered the call in their squad car. They crept into the fog pocket, parked their cruiser in the outside southbound lane, and procmeeded to question Piper and Kiefer.

Another big oil tanker came booming through the fog. The driver slammed on his brakes but hit the police car and knocked it astraddle of the two southbound traffic lanes.

The driver stopped but disappeared in the fog without giving his name.

Almost before the policemen could collect their wits, another big tractor trailer oil truck, driven by John Rogers Payne, 36, of 24 crashed into the first car, which crashed into the first car which rammed the police car and demolished it.

Payne stopped and identified himself. The patrolmen would like to meet up with the driver who got away. All of the drivers were charged with technical reckless driving and will appear at Halethorpe, Md., police court on February 25.

Group Awards Jackson Scroll For Nazi War Crimes Work

For his contribution to international law and order as prosecutor at the Nuernberg war criminal trials, Supreme Court Justice Robert H. Jackson was honored by the National Federation of Temple Brotherhoods last night.

Jesse Cohen of Brooklyn, N. Y., retiring federation president, in presenting the organization's scroll to the justice in a brief ceremony in the pine-paneled library of Washington Hebrew Congregation, said Jackson had emphasized "the basic common law in the service of humanity."

"This represented a victory for people of all beliefs, political, religious, social and economic," Cohen said.

In replying to the tribute, the Justice said he believed "we can have a world of peace and order if we have governments willing to submitt their acts to the scrutiny of law."

Dr. Eisendrath Speaks

Dr. Maurice N. Eisendrath of New York, president of the Union of American Hebrew Congregations, parent body of the Federations, said the Nuernberg trials demonstrated that the moral law of God was applicable to the heads of states and their followers, as well as to ordinary men.

S. Herbert Kaufman of Harrisburg, Pa., was elected president of the Federation at an afternoon session of the organization, holding its twelfth biennial convention in the Hotel Shoreham. Kaufman has been prominent in the organization's work for 16 years.

Vice presidents include: First, Julian W. Newman, Brooklyn; second, James L. Magrish, Cincinnati; third, Charles L. Reizenstein, Pittsburgh.

Joseph F. Finkelstein of Brooklyn was elected treasurer, and Arthur L. Reinhart of Cincinnati was reappointed executive director for his 22d year.

Earlier in the day Dr. Leo Baeck of London, president of the World Union for Progressive Judaism and a former prisoner in German concentration camps, told delegates that both the United States and the American Jewry have great roles assigned to them by historic developments.

Jacob Aronson, chairman of the board, Union of American Hebrew Congregations, told the federation that its efforts to make Judaism better understood by Christians was helping "to counteract misinformation which according to recent polls is poisoning the minds of multitudes against Americans of the Jewish faith."

Today's program will include religious services at 11 a. m. at Washington Hebrew Congregation; a sightseeing tour, election of officers by the Jewish Chautauqua Society, and a silver jubilee dinner at 7:30 p. m. at the Shoreham at which Attorney General Tom C. Clark will be guest speaker.

Daylight Saving Error Explained

District officials erred Thursday when they announced the Commissioners' indorsement of a District daylight saving time bill supposedly introduced in the House by Representative Joseph P. O'Hara (R., Minn.).

Representative O'Hara, an opponent of DST, has introduced no legislation concerning DST in the District. The bill favored by the city heads was introduced by Representative Arthur G. Klein (D., N. Y.). It would allow the Commissioners to order DST here each summer at their discretion.

Brotherhood Week Opens Here Feb. 22

Protestant, Catholic and Jewish leaders will join civic, business, labor, educational and citizen groups in observing "American Brotherhood Week" here February 22 to 29.

Pledged to raise $25,000 as the area's share of the $2,500,000 national quota, the Washington committee has formulated a series of events calculated to keep in the forefront of the national drive.

The funds will be used to sponsor scientific research; to analyze national differences; to aid universities, school systems, churches, parishes and community groups in the use of this knowledge; to prepare material for use by civic, business, labor and social organizations in increasing practical American brotherhood, and to equip national conference offices in every American city with facilities to assist this program.

Sponsored by the National Conference of Christians and Jews, "American Brotherhood Week" will be observed here by programs in schools, churches, civic clubs, motion picture theaters, women's clubs and citizen groups.

Religious leaders on the executive committee of the area drive include the Rev. James A. Caulfield, Bishop Angus Dun, Rabbi Norman Gerstenfeld, Dr. Lee J. McCormick, Rabbi Solomon H. Metz and the Rev. F. Nelson Schlegel.

President Truman has accepted honorary chairmanship of the drive and former Secretary of War Robert P. Patterson will serve as general chairman of the national committee. Watson B. Miller will be general chairman of the local observance, and the District Commissioners have accepted the honorary cochairmanship for the local committee.

Tar Heels Barely Edge Terps, 51-47

A fighting Maryland team missed springing the upset of the year by four points and 20 seconds, bowing to overwhelmingly favored North Carolina, 51-47, in a tense Southern Conference battle last night at College Park.

In 20 seconds Bob Paxton dropped a one-handed shot from the side that broke a 47-all tie and lanky Sherman Nearman dribbled the length of the floor to add another for insurance.

The winning goal capped a late scoring flurry by Roger Scholbe who dumped three fast goals to melt a Maryland lead that seemed secure.

Terps Are "On"

The Terps weren't conceded a chance against the second-place North Carolina team that walloped them, 70-46, in an earlier game and went into the game loser only to NC State in conference play.

But Flucie Stewart's boys, beaten handily by George Washington in their last outing, definitely were "on" and North Carolina was giving an atrocious exhibition of shooting.

That is, the Tar Heels weren't hitting until they had to, and in the last four minutes they had to. Things still looked good for the Terps who lost a 13-point second half lead when Bill Brown dribbled all the way in for a goal that made the score 44-38 with less than four minutes.

Paxton, boomed for All-American in Carolina, dropped one of his side-set specialities to make it 44-40 and Roger Scholbe of Milwaukee made the first of three rapid two-pointers to cut it another two points.

Scholbe Follows

After Edwards converted a foul, Paxton drew two shots. He made the first and when he missed the second he set up a tap-in by Scholbe that tied it at 45 with two minutes to go.

Scholbe again tallied but Maryland still was in it when slender Bernie Smith banged one home. But after a shot by Spence Wright rolled out and Bill Brown's tap followed suit, the Tar Heels roared down the floor and gave Paxton the ball for the shot that spelled defeat for the Terps.

Jack George and Tom Fannon paced the Cadets to their seventeenth win in 18 games by scoring 17 and 14 points, respectively. Gus Baroutas tallied 16 for Chamberlain.

Hoyas Face Worried, Unbeaten NYU Team at Armory Tonight

By Jack Walsh
Post Reporter

This sports business gets a bit mystifying at times.

You meet a coach who's losing and he's worried, naturally. Then again, like yesterday, you meet NYU's Coach Howard Cann who bosses one of the two undefeated basketball teams in the country and what do you find? He's worried.

Cann, whose boys are doing everything in their power to make his twenty-fifth coaching year one of his best, even professes to be concerned about Georgetown.

NYU, with a 15-game winning streak, meets the Hoyas tonight at the Armory and the advance sale indicates that they'll play before a full house.

"I know that Georgetown has lost more than it has won," said Cann, "but we saw them beat St. John's in the Garden and thought they looked pretty good.

Not Exceptional

Minimizing the exploits of his Violets, Cann added, "We have a good team. I don't think we have an exceptional one."

It's true that NYU has about the same club it had last year when it won 12 and dropped 9. Only outstanding man who isn't around is Sid Tanenbaum. But it's also true that the New Yorkers were hit by injuries and lost 7 of their last 8 games. In only one were they beaten by a convincing margin.

But, according to Cann, that's the secret of compiling a creditable record. "You win the tough ones that could go either way," he explained, "that's what we've done so far."

Closest calls his team has had were the one-point victory over Temple last Saturday night and a two-point triumph over St. Francis of Brooklyn early in the season.

Tough Road Ahead

Cann, a great player himself who led NYU to the National championship in 1920, is convinced many more lie ahead. Tonight's game is the last out of New York. Of six opponents to be met, five are from the metropolitan area. The sixth is Notre Dame.

In order NYU faces Manhattan, St. John's, Rutgers, Notre Dame, Fordham and C. C. N. Y.

"They're all veteran teams and, I'm afraid, they all may beat us," Cann prophesied gloomily.

He might have been thinking of his 1940 team that won 18 straight before C. C. N. Y. snapped its streak in the final game. Or, even last year's game when City College won, 91-60.

Anyway, with a faraway look in his eyes, he took his boys to the Armory for a pre-game practice and he definitely seemed worried.

NYU Team Finds "Those Kids" Have Court Priority

A tall, broad-shouldered gent strode over to the scorer's table during the second half of yesterday's Wilson-Coolidge interhigh basketball game at the Armory.

"Hey, bud," he said to Scorekeeper Tommy Nolan. "How 'bout gettin' these kids off the floor real quick like. We've come a long way and need the floor."

"Sorry, Mister," Nolan replied. "This is a public high series game, and we have a permit for the court until 7 p. m. Who are you anyway?"

"Sid Ferkauf's the name," said the big fellow. "I'm assistant coach of the New York U. basketball team that plays Georgetown here tomorrow night. Sorry, I didn't know this was a real game. Is it okay if we practice after 7?"

"Okay," said Nolan. "Just so you're off the floor by 8 when we start our night doubleheader."

Muhlenberg, Navy Tilt Tops 10-Event Program Today

Annapolis, Md., Feb. 13 (AP).—Navy's basketball team, still smarting from a one-point loss to West Virginia, takes on another tough customer in Muhlenberg tomorrow.

The game, slated for Dahlgren Hall at 2:30 p. m., headlines a 10-event sports bill at the Academy.

Muhlenberg has dropped only two contests all season and both were to Temple, which has knocked off some of the country's best quints. Up to last Saturday, the Mules were twenty-second in the Nation for total offense with a 62.7 average per game.

Harry Donovan, boasting a 15.9 average, has led Muhlenberg's attack, but all his mates have been accurate in shots from the floor. In 14 games they basketed 334 of 989 pitches for a .338 percentage. Navy, with Bob Searle's 13.9 average the best, had .323 for nine games.

As for mutual opponents, Muhlenberg kicked Villanova, one of four teams to beat the Middies; both clubs trampled Princeton and Bucknell, but Navy by greater margins.

Wrestling against Princeton heads the rest of the program. Navy grapplers had an easy time last week in making Columbia their forty-second straight dual meet victim and are heavily favored to make it 43.

Other varsitwy events match the Middie fencers against Saltus Fencing Club of New York City and gymnasts against Delaware.

Western Bows, 56-33, To Vikings

BULLETIN

At the end of the third quar- of the second game McKinley Tech led Eastern, 31-28.

Central's Vikings secured a playoff berth last night by coasting to a 56-33 victory over Western in the first game of an Inter-High basketball doubleheader before 3000 fans at National Guard Armory.

The win was Central's fifth in six league games, and enabled the Vikings to remain in a tie for first place with Roosevelt. The loss was Western's fourth in six games, and eliminated the Red Raiders from contention.

Easy From the Start

After the first four minutes, there was no doubt about who would win. The Vikings led at the first quarter, 12-7. They widened their margin to 29-15 at intermission, and weer ahead, 38-23, going into the last quarter when they inserted their reserves.

Jimmy Pantos, Hal Sponsler and Bobby Johnson led the Vikings with 14, 13 and 11 points respectively. Wayne Brizendine was practically the whole show for Western as he tossed in 19 of his team's 33 points. His 10 points in the final stanza were the only ones that Western scored in the last eight minutes.

Lions Defeat Hornets, 5-3

The last-place Washington Lions scored their most notable victory of the American Hockey League season by defeating the league-leading Pittsburgh Hornets, 5-3, before 1125 fans last night at Uline Arena.

Leading, 3-2, as the final period began, the Lions went further ahead on Johnny Carr-Harris' goal off Goalie Baz Bastien's leg at 3:40. After Pittsburgh's Bill Benson scored on a pass from Jack Hamilton to put the visitors one goal behind the Lions, Washington Rookie Maurice Robidas skated to the Pittsburgh blue line and fired a sizzling 60-foot drive that caught the lower left hand corner of the net to clinch the game.

After falling behind, 2-0, the Lions put on a spectacular series of drives to move into a 3-2 lead at the end of the second period. Johnny Carr-Harris' point-blank shot off Baz Bastien's leg opened the rally. Dan Porteous climaxed a series of furious attacks by hammering a rebound past Bastien to end the score.

Less than a minute later Don Slater put the Lions ahead with another close range goal, following unsuccessful shots by Maurice Robibas and Bud Foley.

'For Sale' Sign Goes on Uline Arena

M. J. Uline, owner of Uline Arena, last night announced that his 3d and M sts. ne., sports plant is for sale.

"I am definitely through with the arena business," Uline said. "I am now negotiating for the sale of the plant with a group who, if they purchase the arena, will demolish it."

Uline said he was dickering with "railroad people" but declined to reveal name of the prospective purchasers.

Several months ago Uline said he would convert the arena part of his building—the other wing houses his ice plant—into a cold storage warehouse.

"The cost of conversion is too high," he said, "and I have decided to sell it."

If the arena is sold and demolished, the franchises of the Washington Capitols of the Basketball Association of America, and of the Washington Lions, of the American Hockey League, would revert to their respective leagues.

Washington would be without pro basketball and hockey as the Arena Owners Association does not permit its teams to play in places other than Arenas owned by members of the association.

Uline again cited "competition from the National Guard Armory" as the cause of his action. "I am not going to continue to lose money," he said.

"My Areana is dark three nights a week," Uline said, "and I am not going to continue to lose money."

He said basketball was holding its own, but admitted his hockey team, deep in the cellar of the American Hockey League, is costing him a pretty penny.

Last year there were few "dark nights" at Uline Arena as colleges played their basketball games there. The schools, however, pulled out this year. They said they could not play there because of the high rental.

Hoya Hockey Off

Georgetown University's hockey team, winner in its first two matches, had its streak slowed down yesterday when icy roads forced postponement of its scheduled game with Lafayette at Allentown, Pa.

A Certainty, Maybe!

'Ifs' A-Plenty Mark Group's Bid for Eagle Grid Team

Philadelphia, Feb. 13 (AP).—A syndicate is being organized to try to purchase the Philadelphia Eagles of the National Football League.

But the plan must overcome these complications:

1. Does Owner Alexis Thompson want to sell the professional grid club?

2. Can the syndicate dig up enough money to tempt Thompson into selling?

The syndicate of Philadelphians is heatded by Attorney Robert A. Hall.

"We haven't even completed the syndicate as yet," Hall said today. "And even if we should get a strong enough group to make a satisfactory offer to Thompson, you can't be sure he's interested in selling.

"Right now we have the nucleus of a good syndicate—but it's a long way from being completed. And there is a chance we won't be able to get enough 'money' men. Then we won't even bother Thompson."

The millionaire owner of the Eagles is now in Europe. He is expected back in the United States about February 23.

Hall, former Yale University football player, declined to name his associates in the syndicate. He said they were men who have "great interest" in pro football in Philadelphia.

Eagles' General Manager Al Ennis said he knew nothing of the syndicate.

However, Ennis pointed out that the Eagles had a team which last year went into the NFL's championship playoff and yet lost money.

Auerbach Has Cold Trouble

Boston Celtics, Caps' Jinxes, Are Coming to Town Tonight

By Morris Siegel
Post Reporter

The Boston Celtics can't make things too warm for the Caps at Uline Arena tonight. Seven of Coach Red Auerbach's hot shots are down with heavy colds.

"The hotter the better," Auerbach moaned last night as he thought of the prospect of meeting Washington's "jinx" team.

The Celts are no great shakes of a club, but they've managed to thrash Washington three out of four times this year, one being an 84-56 pasting, the worst licking the Caps have ever received.

Only Johnny Norlander and Irv Torgoff aren't on Washington's "not doing so well" list and even they have a slight case of sniffles.

The Caps haven't been able to muster enough men for a full-scale practice since Wednesday and Auerback fears the layoff won't do his team's chances any good.

Caps Have One Coming

The 28-point shellacking the Celts pinned on the Caps in Boston last months is quite a sore spot with the Western Division leaders. Only the evening before Washington had scored a brilliant 106-99 triumph over Philadelphia.

A Washington victory this evening would make it 11 straight on the Uline floor and run the Caps' latest win streak to five in a row.

The green-shirted Bostonians will be paced, as usual, by Ed Sadowski, their gargantuan center. Sadowski, second only to Joe Fulks as a scorer, is the biggest man in pro basketball. The former Seton Hall luminary weighs 250 and goes up to 6 feet 9 inches.

Bloom With Celtics

Boston is also bringing along Mike Bloom, late of the Baltimore Bullets. Bloom and Washington's Freddie Scolari and Johnny Norlander almost precipitated a riot two weeks ago in a Cap-Bullet game. Norlander and Bloom started it and Scolari joined in the fight.

Referee Pat Kennedy broke it up only a second before other players were ready to get in the act.

After a great early start during which they led the Eastern Division for weeks, the Celts slumped and are now in third place. Bloom has helped them since he joined the team last week. Other starters will be Mel Riebe, Saul Mariaschin, Dutch Garfinkel and Stan Noszka.

In a 7:30 preliminary, Clifton goes after its twenty-first straight with Harrisonburg (Va.) All-Stars, the party of the second part.

Ingram Ducks McKeever Issue

Chicago, Feb. 13 (U.P.).—Jonas H. Ingram, commissioner of the All-America Football Conference, said tonight that no disciplinary action is planned "at present" against Ed McKeever, Chicago Rockets coach whose recent "white paper" upset the Pacific Coast Conference.

Ingram said he probably would hear more about the affair tomorrow when the first executive session of the AAC annual meeting gets under way.

The newly hired Rocket coach left his post at the University of San Francisco with a published parting shot against the university's use of ineligible football players who withheld information about their previous scholastic experience.

He also charged that "something would have to be done" about the $70-$50-$40 salaries which had been paid the players.

Coolidge Loses, 51-37, To Wilson

By Herb Heft
Post Reporter

Roosevelt Rough Riders, rated before the season as second division material, were first to clinch their interhigh playoff berth yesterday as they nosed out Anacostia's Indians, 34-32, in the first game of a double-header at the National Guard Armory.

In the second game, before a small crowd of 1074, Woodrow Wilson's Green Tigers preserved their playoff chances with a 51-37 victory over last-place Coolidge.

Roosevelt now has a 5-1 record, Anacostia and Wilson are 3-3 each, and Coolidge brings up the rear with 0-6.

Riders Stage Rally

Roosevelt's victory was one of the most spectacular of the season. Outplayed throughout the first three quarters, the Riders trailed, 32-18, with 70 seconds to play.

Then Billy Paugh sank a field goal from 35 feet out to cut the Roosevelt deficit. With 30 seconds left, Roosevelt's Billy Hibbs drove through to lay up the tying basket.

With 15 seconds left, Anacostia's Dave Migdel fouled Hibbs, and the 5 foot 9 inch star lazily flipped in what proved to be the winning point. With eight seconds left, Migdel fouled Paugh and Paugh added the insurance tally.

W. Warner Gets 13

Roosevelt trailed, 7-6, 17-16 and 28-23 at the first three quarters marks. Wally Warner of Anacostia, league's leading scorer, tallied 13 points to tie teammate Perry Lear for point-making honors.

Warner's six-game total is now 100. Hibbs and Warren Siegel were high for Roosevelt with nine and eight points.

The Wilson-Coolidge game was nip and tuck for three quarters. But the Tigers outscored the Colts, 14-5, in the last quarter to win easily. Jack Whitcomb and Dick Janigian led Wilson with 21 and 19 points.

Two Jockeys Seriously Hurt in Hialeah Race Spill

Apprentices Suffer Bone Fractures

Hialeah, Fla., Feb. 13 (AP).—Harold Featherston and Richard Kline, both promising apprentice riders, suffered serious injuries in a spectacular mixup early in today's second race.

Physicians' hasty examination brought the report that Featherston had a fractured lower right arm, fractured back and possible paralysis. Kline suffered a badly fractured upper right leg. Both boys were rushed to a hospital in Miami.

The mixup occurred soon after the start of the 7-furlong plater dash. Peg stumbled and went down with Featherston and Kline, apparently attempting to avoid a collision, slipped from the saddle ofPhidias and went down.

Sir Spic Second

The race was won by She's Home, paying $30.90. Sir Spic was second and Olidor third.

Ted Atkinson came through with a photo triumph astride the 2-to-5 favorite, Marine Band, in the sixth race and thus passed the five-million-dollar mark in all-time earnings of his mounts.

The Samuel D. Riddle 3-year-old picked up $2600, which made Atkinson's gleanings hit $5,002,488. Terrific Ted from Toronto began riding in December of 1937 year, earning exactly nothing.

but had only two mounts that

Since he gave up a job in a Brooklyn chemistry plant to become a jockey, Atkinson has had 1683 winners, 1479 seconds and 1296 thirds. This year, at the current meeting, now 25 days old, Ted has ridden 40 winners, 20 seconds and 18 thirds for earnings of $139,450. He did not ride at the Gulfstream Park session.

287 Winners in '44

"The Slasher's" biggest season was 1947, when his mounts accounted for $1,070,260. Ted was only third to Johnny Longden and Steve Brooks in winners ridden, having 232. In 1944 he led the national list with 287 victories and finished first again in '46 with 233 triumphs.

Ted had to use all of his cunning and strength to help Marine Band to victory. The War Relic colt was rated off the front-running Realtor, from Laddie Sanford's barn, to the stretch. Then Atkinson went to the whip, urged his mount into a head advantage, and the combination kept it in a thrillin gdrive. Realtor saved the place in the 7-furlong test for 3-year-olds, a half length before Wheatley Stable's Athlete. The time was 1:24 4/5.

Army Host To '49 Hawaii Grid Team

For the first time in its history Army will meet a football team from outside the continental United States when it entertains the University of Hawaii at West Point on September 24, 1949.

"Biff" Jones, athletic director at West Point, confirmed the game yesterday, adding that arrangements were only for one year.

"Bo" Is Undecided

Bloomington, Ind., Feb. 13 (AP).—Alvin N. (Bo) McMillan indicated today he had been offered a job as coach of the Detroit Lions of the National Football League. But he doesn't know yet what he is going to do about it.

The gray-thatched athletic director and head football coach at Indiana University hasn't even talked with Indiana authorities about leaving, he said, because he hasn't made up his mind that he wants to leave.

A Shower for Baby

Los Angeles, Feb. 13 (AP).—Jerry King, 26, a teleprinter operator, placed a $2 across-the-board hunch bet on Baby Shower in the eighth race at Santa Anita Park.

Just about the time the race was being run yesterday King's wife, Rae Jean, 21, gave birth to an eight-pound boy at Monte Sano Hospital, the couple's first child.

Baby Shower came home first, paying $17.40 to win, $8.30 to place and $4.80 to show. King collected $30.50.

Sid's Still Willing

Chicago, Feb. 13 (AP).—Quarterback Sid Luckman, who has pitched a football something like eight miles for 124 touchdowns in nine National Football League seasons, has extended his Chicago Bear contract another season, through 1949.

$1000 for Smartness

Buffalo, N. Y., Feb. 13 (AP).—Stan Rojek says honesty pays off. Recently traded to the Pittsburgh Pirates by Brooklyn, he told a group attending a sports gathering last night about the time he was offered a bonus to jump to the Mexican League.

Rojek said he refused, of course, and when Branch Rickey of the Dodgers heard about it he gave him $1000 for "being honest and using his head."

Schoolboy Nets 65

Detroit, Feb. 13 (AP).—Joe Schafener, a high school basketball player, scored 65 points in a game last night. The 6-foot 4-inch youth shot 27 field goals and 11 free throws as his Annunciation Parochial School team defeated St. Bernard's, 95 to 62.

Terps Fight Tonight in Double Bill

University of Maryland boxers will inaugurate a ring doubleheader at 8 o'clock tonight at the College Park Coliseum when they meet both Clemson and American University.

The Terp regulars, Southern Conference and Sugar Bowl champions, will take on Clemson, the team which they nosed out for the Conference title last season.

Clemson will fight tonight without the services of two of their mainstays, Jerry Orr, 130-pound Southern Conference champ, and Ariel Warrick, middleweight, are sidelined with injuries.

Held to a tie by Michigan State last week, the potent Terps will be shooting for their fifth victory of the season. Their only loss was to Army.

For Andy Quattrocchi and Ed Rieder it will be an opportunity to extend their personal victory streaks to seven straight. Quattrocchi has won five bouts via the knockout route and decisioned Louisiana State's Doug Elwood. Tonight he will box Clemson's Dave Coakley of Washington, D. C.

Rieder won his first four bouts by knockouts, but had to be content with decisions in his last two outings.

"Foolish Fellow"

Louis Retains His Title In Brush With 'Irishman'

New York, Feb. 13 (AP)—Heavyweight Champion Joe Louis easily retained his title early today in a night club encounter with a 50-year-old Irishman whose pugnacity was unquestioned but whose aim was poor.

The only swing was taken by Thomas Delaney. He landed on the floor. Witnesses said the only contribution Louis made to this result was some fancy footwork in ducking the punch.

"So you're Joe Louis," the Irishman said. "Well, I'm going to beat Walcott to the title. I'm going to become the first Irish heavyweight champion of the world."

Police took the 6 foot, 200-pound Delaney to a precinct station, advised him Friday the thirteenth was the wrong day to challenge Louis, and released him.

Local Committee Considers $10,000 Fund for Olympics

An informal committee yesterday considered the possibilities of raising $10,000 here for the American Olympic fund and of holding Olympic trials for the Washington area in one or more sports this spring.

Avery Brundage, head of the American Olympic Committee, has asked Washington to contribute $10,000 to a $500,000 national fund which will be used for sending American athletes to the 1948 Olympiad in London next summer.

Joe Aronoff, Amateur Athletic Union, was instructed to communicate with Olympic officials for information as to whether any trials are available and details on conducting them.

Another meeting will be held next Friday.

Demaret's 129 Takes Lead

Harlingen, Tex., Feb. 13 (AP).—Jimmy Demaret swung in with a blazing seven under par 64 today to take over leadership in the lower Rio Grande Valley $10,000 open at the halfway mark with a 36-hole total of 129.

Mangrum came in with a 65 to edge into second place ahead of Clayton Heafner, the blond from Charlotte, N. C., who was co-leader with Demaret at 65 for the first round yesterday. Heafner took a 69 to fall into third place with a 134 total.

In fourth place were Ky Laffoon of St. Andrews, Ill., who had a 69 today, and Bob Hamilton of Evansville, Ind., who shot a 70. They had 36-hole totals of 136.

LaMotta Fined, Suspended in N. Y.

New York, Feb. 13 (AP).—The New York State Athletic Commission today suspended boxer Jake Lamotta until June 21 and fined him $1000 for having concealed facts of his physical condition before he was stopped by Billy Fox of Philadelphia on November 14 at Madison Square Garden.

He immediately filed suit in the Supreme Court to void the action, claiming he was "the victim of a political feud between the chairman of the Boxing Commission and the district attorney." He did not elaborate.

LaMotta has been under "temporary suspension" ever since November 21, when he admitted to the commission that he went into the Fox fight with an injured side and against the advice of his physician. The bout was halted in the fourth round after LaMotta had taken a fierce beating from the Philadelphia Negro.

Button Wins Skate Crown

Davos Platz, Switzerland, Feb. 13 (AP).—Dick Button, the handsome 18-year-old prodigy from Englewood, N. J., came from behind today to add the men's world figure skating championship to the Olympic crown he won last week at St. Moritz.

In a flawless display of free-style skating, the American youth easily overcame a lead which his staunch rival, Hans Gerschwiler of Switzerland, had taken in yesterday's compulsory figures.

Once again, as in the Olympics, the 28-year-old Gerschwiler fell today while attempting an intricate figure, and Button sailed on to victory. The final count of the nine judges gave Button 1980.7 points to Gerschwiler's 1948.5.

Ede Kiraly of Hungary gained third place with 1917.9 points, and then came two more Americans, John Lettingarver of St. Paul, Minn., with 1909.8 points and Jimmie Grogan of Oakland, Calif., with 1807.2.

The Little Admirals won yesterday's tilt on the foul line, making 13 to Mercersburg's three free throws. Yesterday's triumph was Bullis' eighth against four defeats.

11 in Family Burn to Death In Utica Fire

Utica, N. Y., Feb. 13 (AP).—Eleven members of one family, including two mothers and nine children, were burned to death today after a 13-year-old girl vainly pleaded that they follow her second-floor leap from their burning home.

The unexplained, early-morning fire swept the two-story frame dwelling and the walls collapsed. Fourteen scantily-clad occupants escaped, three were hospitalized with burns.

Young Mary Hoage said she had jumped into a snowbank from a second-floor porch, after failing to convince her stepmother, Mrs. Ruth Hoage, 24, and the others to do the same.

"I pleaded for them to follow me and throw the babies down, but they said they would wait for the firemen to rescue them," she related.

Ten bodies, most of them charred beyond recognition were recovered. One clutched a baby.

The dead are Mrs. Ruth Hoage, wife of Richard Hoage, sr.; Mrs. Shirley Hoage, 29, wife of Richard Hoage, jr.; Virginia, 19; Dana, 3; Mark, 8 months, Catherine, 2; Geraldine, 10; Audrey, 5; Charity, 7; Michael, 11 months, and Lee, 3 weeks.

Mrs. Ruth Hoage was the mother of three children, the stepmother of four and the grandmother of the other two. Michael was the son of the junior Hoages.

Mrs. Margaret Alguire, 28, said screams awoke her as flames broke into her quarters.

Once out, she was tortured by the cry "Peggy! Peggy!" apparently from Mrs. Shirley Hoage.

Actor Beery Named in Paternity Suit

Gloria Whitney

Miss Whitney, suing under her real name, Gloria Schumm, alleged Johan Richard Wallace Schumm was born last Saturday of an intimate rendezvous on or about last May 1.

She described Beery as a "prominent motion picture character actor of great wealth and affluence, possessed of moneys and properties in excess of $1,000,000."

"I have known Miss Whitney for 15 years. She has just been a casual acquaintance. There is absolutely no truth to the charge. I don't know why she is doing this."

Movie records show Beery was born in Kansas City April 1, 1889, which would make him 58. He has appeared in some 400 films in a 36-year career.

He was married in 1916 to Gloria Swanson, silent screen star. They were divorced two years later. In 1939, he and the former Mary Areta Gilman were divorced, ending 14 years of marriage.

Johnson Quits New Republic in Economy Drive

New York, Feb. 13 (AP).—The resignation of Edd Johnson, managing editor of the New Republic, in the wake of an economy drive was confirmed today by Michael Straight, publisher.

Two were girls who previously had been working exclusively for Henry A. Wallace, the publisher said. Wallace resigned as editor in December.

110 Qualify As Jurors to Break Civil Suit Log Jam

2 Appeals Judges Scheduled to Lend Services Monday To Municipal Court

A panel of 110 jurors was qualified in Municipal Court yesterday as a first step in a full-blast program to cut down the court's backlog of 935 civil jury cases.

Beginning Monday—for at least a month—two judges of the Municipal Court of Appeals will join two judges of the lower court to tackle the choked docket 5 days a week. The four other judges in the Municipal Court civil division will pitch in whenever their own business permits.

This morning, Judge Brice Clagett of the appellate court will hold "preliminary call" in 248 of the cases. He will set down for hearing all cases in which attorneys are ready.

Assigned to the civil jury bench beginning Monday will be Chief Judge Nathan Cayton of the Appeals Court. Clagett, Chief Judge George P. Barse of Municipal Court and Judge Walter J. Casey of Municipal Court, Cayton will sit for two weeks, then will be replaced by his other associate judge, Andrew M. Hood.

The judges hope to loosen the jam by March 16, but may continue the system if necessary.

Under the old system, all six civil judges alternated between jury and nonjury cases approximately every two weeks. They also tried to hear jury cases on Fridays during the nonjury periods.

The new plan was announced Tuesday by Barse and Cayton following a meeting of all the Municipal Court judges with a committee of the District Bar Association.

It is the second time in 16 months that the Municipal Court has enlisted the appellate court's aid in clearing a backlog. The upper court sat for nearly a month in October, 1946, to help relieve a congested docket of landlord-and-tenant cases.

Girl, 16, Gets 1 to 3 Years For Robbing GI

A 16-year-old girl yesterday was sentenced in District Court to serve from 1 to 3 years for the robbery of a soldier whom she had invited into her room.

In pronouncing sentence, Associate Justice Richmond B. Keech recommended that the girl, Evelyn Thompson, a slim blonde from Petersburg, Va., be sent to a reformatory.

A male companion of Miss Thompson, Jacob L. Merritt, 23, 1109 M st. nw., is currently serving a six-month sentence for petit larceny in connection with the robbery. Merritt was allowed to plead guilty to the lesser charge in Municipal Court several weeks ago.

Since she was a juvenile, the girl was not allowe dto plead there; but after Juvenile authorities waived jurisdition, she was sent to District Court for trial on the robbery charge.

In another case, Associate Justice Edward M. Curran sentenced Joseph Q. Breckenridge, 28, of 1802 24th pl. se., to from 3 to 9 years for firing a pistol shot at Mrs. Breckenridge. The slug went wild.

Willie Callaham, 32, of 424 M st. nw., was sentenced to from 3 to 12 years for manslaughter. Callaham was convicted of shooting to death Richard Mosley, 1308 H st. nw., in a fight last November.

Runs Afoul of Law

A 22-year-old Cheverly, Md., mechanic who defied the "13" jinx by driving his wife to Hyattsville to take a driver's test, ran afoul of the law yesterday, just two blocks from the scene of the scheduled test.

Kenneth I. Broderick, 2706 Belleview ave., was charged with reckless driving when, according to Prince Georges County Policeman Emmett Gray, he operated his car in reverse for a distance of more than 100 feet "at an unreasonable speed." Gray said Broderick backed up on heavily-congested Rhode Island ave. when he found his way to the driver test station blocked by a one-way street.

He was summonsed to appear in Hyattsville Police Court next Thursday at 10 a. m.

Food Price Cuts Regarded By Area Buyers With Doubt

By Adrienne Tassler
Post Reporter

Mrs. Washington, out of her weekend grocery shopping yesterday, was cheered by some prices and unimpressed by others.

Housewives were interviewed in various sections of the city by a reporter of The Washington Post during the past two days.

Most cheerful reactions came from women who put butter and bacon back on shopping lists for the first time in months as a result of price drops.

Sour notes came from buyers who were skeptical of both the extent and duration of price drops.

"To Good to Be True"

"It's too good to be true," Mrs. Lewis E. Berry, of 307 Parkland pl., se., said, reporting purchase of a pound of bacon for 55 cents "instead of the usual 67 cents." She added:

"I'm not getting excited about this yet, because frankly I don't think it will last."

Mrs. Eugene Whitmore of 2139 Wyoming ave. nw. struck a frequently repeated note:

A careful shopper because "today's prices take practically all of my husband's salary for us to live," Mrs. R. W. Wright of 4 Danbury st. sw., wife of a naval research laboratory physicist, noted a variety of price cuts while marketing.

Some Savings Noted

Her arms laden with parcels, Mrs. Wright reported such savings as—1 cent on 3 cans of tomato juice, 3 cents on 12 cans of baby food, 4 cents on a pound of margarine . . .

"I hope it's going to last," the youthful housewife said. "But it's hard to tell."

Mrs. Grace Proctor of 6111 St. Danabas rd., Chapel Hill, Md., who came into the District to shop, reported "a drop in lard prices," from 29 cents a pound to 23 cents. However, she said, "hamburger was 43 cents last Saturday and that's what I paid for it today."

She's Not Too Impressed

Mrs. Proctor summed up her views on prices in this way:

"They're not low enough to get excited about."

Mrs. Emma Kanegis of 619 I st. sw., who has two children and a husband to feed, found that some prices have come down and "some of the prices have gone up." The "most spectacular decrease," she said, "has been in egg prices," but "the price of butter is still fluctuating and I still can't afford to buy any."

Asked to comment on price cuts, Mrs. Marie Armstrong, of 475 E st. sw., whose husband is employed in the Navy Yard, said:

She labeled current prices "outrageous" and contended "they're too much for the working man's family or any family for that matter."

Mrs. J. A. Alexander of 1803 Biltmore st. nw., said she'd "spent just as much as I ordinarily do" on her marketing. "I haven't noticed any significant changes."

Mrs. Nathan Goldberg of 1811 Varnum st. nw., said she hadn't "noticed any changes in prices at all" except that "certain meat prices went up." She said chicken cost 3 cents more on the pound and fish 49 cents instead of the "usual" 45 cents.

Mrs. Ethel Clarke of 635 11th st. ne., reported that "every day this week the price on something also has come down." Although "things are a lot better," she said, "prices could come down a lot farther so far as I'm concerned."

Mrs. Clarke is the mother of three. Her husband is an engineer.

A widow with four children, Mrs. Myrtle Maude, of 200 35th st. se., reported while shopping in a neighborhood chain store that:

"I think prices came down on certain things but on standard brands, which I buy, they stay the same. I imagine they will come down but it will probably take another week or so before we'll feel it."

Mrs. Wallace Buell of 1875 Mintwood pl. nw., who was out shopping on Columbia rd. with her daughter, Linda, 3, said:

"I've noticed drops in some prices but I think they ought to go down more. They're much too high—meat especially."

Mrs. Clara Keller of 337 Parkland pl. se. said she paid 2 cents less for butter this week and 4 cents less for a dozen eggs. "But I haven't noticed any more change in my pocketbook," she said. "Prices are so high that all we can do is pay rent and eat."

Mrs. Keller's husband is a Government clerk.

Mrs. H. A. Posner of 1629 Columbia rd. nw., called the price cut "phony" and "just a lure for the housewife to come in and spend her money."

"I've done a lot of shopping today and I didn't see any difference," Mrs. Pauline Del Re of 2809 Ontario rd. nw., asserted. "I think prices are ridiculous . . . I have a family of eight and I'm certainly having a hard time feeding them."

Mrs. Miriam Sanford of 523 Parkland pl. se., said she hadn't noticed any great decline in prices.

"I'm waiting to see whether they really will come down or whether they're just getting our hopes up," she said.

Prince Georges Acquits Man of Manslaughter

Frank Froio, 61, of Philadelphia, was acquitted in Upper Marlboro Police Court yesterday of charges of manslaughter and reckless driving in connection with the death of a Savage, Md., woman, November 29.

Judge Alan Bowie ruled there was no indication of recklessness or negligence after hearing testimony that the woman, Miss Mary Mewshaw, 57, darted into the path of Froio's auto on Baltimore blvd. near the Laurel sanitarium.

14th St., N. W., Zone Change Is Opposed

Neighborhood residents yesterday lined up, 14 to 2, against a proposal to rezone the west side of 14th st. nw., between Kennedy and Longfellow sts., for commercial use.

Opponents said the change would adversely affect the Sixteenth Street Highlands residential area and argued that present stores on nearby Colorado ave. and the east side of 14th st. were sufficient to provide service.

They included the Rev. N. N. Simmonds, pastor of Highlands Baptist Church at 14th st. and Colorado ave.; Ulysses Butler, 1419 Longfellow st. nw., and William Kurtz, operator of a dry cleaning establishment at 5512 Colorado ave.

Michel Gennusa, 5514 14th st. nw., sponsor of the proposal, said the east side of 14th st. in his block is zoned commercial, forcing his property's value up to to where he pays "close to" $300 annual taxes on a six-room house.

If the street's west side is rezoned commercial, he said, he could set up offices for a doctor in his home to help bear the high tax cost. The Zoning Commission took the case under advisement following the hearing.

Bedford High Senior Wins DAR Contest

Charlottesville, Va., Feb. 13 (AP). Miss Edmonia Johnson, a senior student at Bedford High School, is winner of the "Good Citizenship Pilgrimage" contest conducted by the Virginia division of the Daughters of the American Revolution.

Miss Johnson's unanimous selection from among 66 entrants was announced today by Mrs. Elmer Burruss of North Gordon, contest chairman. Each entrant represented a different high school in the State.

Miss Martha Louise Reuff of John Marshall High, Richmond, came in second, and Miss Shirley Anne McCoy, Blacksburg High, third.

As winner, Miss Johnson will received an all-expensive trip to Washington in April.

Policeman's Army Guise Lets Woman Escape Vice Charge

Municipal Court Judge George D. Neilson dismissed Pvt. Fields' charge of solicitation against Nannie Belle Lucas, 26, of 4831 41st st. nw., after sharply reprimanding the policeman.

"If the police are going to make cases, they ought to do so properly," declared Judge Neilson, describing the arrest as "entrapment."

The woman testified she invited Fields and an unidentified Army sergeant to a room at 725 4th st. nw., when the two stopped near her to light cigarettes. Fields, she said, was wearing a khaki shirt and an Army-style mackinaw, and had an officer's cap stuffed under the mackinaw shoulderstrap.

After the two had handed her $10, partly in marked money, Fields testified, he identified himself and made the arrest.

Assistant United States Attorney Andrew Howard, as prosecutor, agreed with Defense Counsel Louis Barnes that the manner of arrest "seems unfair." Since the Army sergeant had not been produced, Howard said, he would agree to dismissal of the charge.

Refiners Decide To Put Stress on Fuel Oil Output

More Supplies Due Immediately To Ease Critical Shortage in Area

Oil refiners decided yesterday to produce more fuel oil and less gasoline in a voluntary program to ease fuel shortages in Washington and the Eastern Seaboard.

Adoption of the plan was announced by the Petroleum Regional Advisory Council following a conference with State fuel coordinators in New York.

The council said additional supplies would begin to flow immediately to critical areas, especially the District, Maryland and Delaware.

May Take Over Tank Cars

The Office of Defense Transportation said Richard H. Lamberton will direct such operations from Chicago. He was given the authority to take up to 2 per cent of the tank cars held by any owner or user to meet requests for fuel deliveries in distressed States.

Although the situation was described as generally tight another warming report came from Eugene Callis, president of the Petrol Corporation, which serves Middle Atlantic States, including Washington. Callis said Petrol's supplies of fuel oil and other products for 60,000 customers in Pennsylvania, New Jersey, Delaware, Maryland and the District of Columbia will remain tight but that the problem "doubtless will be worked out" with a minimum of annoyance to the customers.

Among the customers, he said, are Federal, States and municipal governments, the Capital Transit Co., of Washington, the Philadelphia Suburban Transportation Co., and the Lehigh Valley Transit Co.

House Group Is Advised

He made his statement to the House Commerce Committee, which is looking into the problem of oil scarcity.

As for oil supplies in Washington yesterday, three Standard Oil barges brought 1,600,000 gallons of fuel oil into the city, easing the situation slightly. Oilmen estimate that the city requires around 750,000 gallons on a cold day.

The District, however, was still said to be on a day-to-day basis with relief going to those who need it most. The Fuel Co-ordinating Office reported it is still swamped with emergency calls for aid.

Agency Gets Supply

Yesterday's 54,000 gallon shipment to the Petrol Corp., major distributor here, was diverted to the Bureau of Federal Supply, the Government's procurement agency, for Federal use.

About half of this amount will be turned back to the District hardship pool, bureau officials said. The balance, presumably, would be used for Government buildings and Federally operated housing developments. These include units at Greenbelt, Fort Myer, Fort Belvoir and at other military installations, to which half of the Government stocks are dispatched, bureau officials said.

Reporter Finds Jinx Story

Then there's the story about the reporter who just couldn't find a Friday the 13th jinx story—until one flared up in his face, or rather in his car.

After vainly combing his beat, District Court, for a hard-luck item, Howard Dutkin, reporter for The Washington Post, ambled out to E st., near 4th st. nw. It was 4 p. m. and a sign nearby said no parking, 4 to 6 p. m. Thought it might be a friendly gesture to the law to sort of move the '39 coupe.

He found his floor board burned and windows smudged. On the driver's seat was a note from a Good Samaritan, one Pfc. Collins, which reported the soldier had stopped a passing bus, borrowed its fire extinguisher to douse the fire engines arrived.

These newspapermen. Anything for a story.

Trust—Bust

The moral of this little item is, neever trust strangers, especially on Friday the 13th. Even more so if the location is an alley at 7th and E sts. sw., for example.

It was there and then that Raymond Leroy Washington, 28, of 628 K st. sw., indulged in a chummy game of three-card monte with two strangers. Then, trusting as well as thirsty, Washington told police, he dealt out a $15 loan for liquid refreshments. The men and money vanished, complained Washington.

Bladensburg Oyster Roast

Bladensburg (Md.) Rescue Squad will hold an oyster roast at the Bladensburg Fire House today, beginning at 2 p. m.

D. C. Police Order

Curb Placed On Arrests Of Juveniles

Metropolitan policemen were ordered yesterday to avoid arresting juveniles.

In a new general order modernizing a number of long-standing orders on the subject, Police Superintendent Maj. Robert J. Barrett told his men to exercise tact and use existing corrective agencies before arresting children.

The order was prepared by the special police review and revision board, which is condensing and overhauling many of the department's general orders.

Tactful Treatment Urged

"Through tactful and considerate treatment," the order reads, "by means of conversations with parents and cooperation with them, and by securing the assistance of the members of the Woman's Bureau and the Juvenile Bureau, it is felt that it may be possible to keep many children out of the custody of the police.

"To this end, it is strongly urged that every member of the department use all remedial influences he can bring to bear before exercising the power of arrest in the case of juveniles."

Police officers are told in the order to avoid, whenever possible, charging juveniles with minor offenses. The Juvenile and Woman's Bureaus, it is pointed out, are well able to handle these situations.

Parents to Get Reports

School-age children found loitering on the streets during school hours should be questioned for identification and then reported to their parents and the school attendance officer, the order continues. Attention is also directed to children congregating out of doors at night.

Only under serious circumstances or in cases where a child's parent or guardian cannot be found should juveniles be sent to the Receiving Home, the order states.

"Collateral will not be accepted from juveniles under any circumstances. After their arrest, they will be released to their parents or guardians."

More of Same Weather Seen For District

Tomorrow, the weatherman said, will be somewhat cloudy and colder.

The coming cold weather, he said, is following a low-pressure area that moved in over the Ohio valley and brought .04 inches of drizzling rain to Washington yesterday. It will be joined later by another cold front that moved across the Canadian border yesterday.

Cold Spell on Way

It sped towards the upper Mississippi Valley and the North Central States, with Northeast States expected to feel its somewhat moderated effect late tomorrow or Monday.

The cold wave is the latest in a series of winter blows which sent a "twister" to Mississippi, posed flood threats in five States and put down a glazed covering from the Plains States to the East Gulf region. Five persons were killed and an undetermined number injured in the "twister" just east of Newton, Miss.

Streams on Rampage

Rain-swollen streams went on rampages yesterday in Tennessee, Mississippi, West Virginia, Kentucky and North Carolina. Red Cross headquarters here reported approximately 6,000 persons in 14 counties of the five States were affected by the floods.

In Logan, W. Va., Eldon Adkins, 5, miner's son, fell into a swollen stream and drowned yesterday. Hundreds of families there were forced from their homes by rivers and streams that spilled over into main streets. The Guyandotte river, normally a stream three feet wide, was over the 22-foot flood level and still rising.

Calling the turn on cloudy and rain, the weatherman ran his batting average up to .692

Area News in Brief

Cat at 1313 13th St. Is 13 Friday 13th

Thirteen-thirteen 13th st. nw., Friday, February 13.—Thirteens popped up here on the first Friday the thirteenth of the year with the inevitability of sevens and 11s in loaded dice.

Compounding the fears of the treacherous day, a bloated black cat, who appears to have sprung from an E. A. Poe nightmare, observed her birthday here. She was born February 13, 1935, 13 years ago. Her name is Susa Bella Anne. Count the letters—13.

The Washington Post
SUZIE
The fish was lucky

Fearless owner of the fateful feline is Mrs. Mildred Welsh, who happens to be thrice 13, or 39 years old.

Mrs. Welsh moved into 1313 13th st. nw., in March, during the thirteenth week of 1946. She moved from 20 3d st. ne., in her thirteenth month of residence there.

Before that, Mrs. Welsh recalls, she lived at 623 F st. sw., for 26 months, twice 13. Incidentally, her son, Thomas F. Welsh, was discharged from the Army last year on the 1st day of the 3d month, March.

All of which is just idle coincidence, observed Mrs. Welsh as she introduced a friend who was visiting to make the day a double cause of celebration. Like Susa Bella Anne, Mrs. Virginia Good, 44, Navy Department secretary, of 2124 Pennsylvania ave. nw., was born February 13.

Anyhow, Mrs. Welsh can't afford to be superstitious. Not about things like walking under ladders, anyway. "You see my father is a paperhanger, and so's my husband," she noted.

Her father, of course, has 13 letters in his name, James McCreary, 72. It was he who deflected a reporter's queries about how it feels to live enmeshed in 13s. Quoth he from the Bible:

"Hold your peace (son), let me alone . . . And let come on me what will." Chapter and verse? Job 13:13.

No Jinx for Jinks

In fact, Friday the thirteenth yielded a lucky break to Jinks, charged with bad brakes and failing to yield right of way to two pedestrians. The accident occurred January 27, at 19th and F sts. nw.

The arresting officer, Pvt. George I. Eppard, of the police accident investigation unit, was stalled in another hearing. So Judge Aubrey Fennell dismissed the charges for lack of prosecution.

Five Appeals Pending

However, it was just another appealing day for Douglas D. Davenport, 30, of 931 G pl. nw. He raised his total of perding appeals in the courts to a solid five.

Judge Armond W. Scott sentenced him to 120 days in jail on a charge of assaulting a 15-year-old girl in Union Station. The judge, however, agreed to set bond at $1,000 pending a motion for appeal by Attorney Saul Lichtenberg.

Meanwhile, records show Davenport is awaiting a decision in the U. S. Court of Appeals on an appeal involving an indecent exposure charge. He also awaits appeal decisions in Municipal Court on two bootlegging and one vagrancy charge.

No Evictions Ordered

The day brought foul weather. Which caused no tears to be shed in Landlord and Tenant Court. According to a standing rule, no eviction orders are issued when the weather is "inclement."

Falls Are No. 1 Hazard on Farms, Survey Reveals

Blacksburg, Va., Feb 13 (AP).—A farmer is more likely to be hurt in a fall than in any other accident.

Result of a recent survey released through the Virginia Agricultural Extension Service showed that falls injured more farm people than any other kind of mishap.

Most common falls listed were those on steps and from vehicles.

The survey of 15,000 farms made by the United States Bureau of Agriculture Economics showed that 56 per cent of all farm accidents were connected directly with farm work while only 8 per cent stemmed from housework.

The number of accidents injuries listed for farm men and boys between the ages of 14 and 64 was about four times that for women and girls.

The period from 25 to 45 years was described as the most dangerous age period for both men and women.

Maj. Gen. James E. Fechet

Maj. Gen. James E. Fechet, former chief of the Air Corps, was buried in Arlington Cemetery yesterday with full military honors.

Flags were flown at half-staff at all Air Force bases throughout the country and a 13-gun salute boomed out as the funeral cortege entered the cemetery grounds from the Fort Myer chapel.

Among the honorary pall bearers who escorted the veteran flyer to his grave were Gen. Carl Spaatz, present chief of the Air Force, and Lieut. Gen. James A. Doolittle, World War II air ace.

General Fetchet, who was born at Fort Ringgold, Tex., 70 years ago, died Wednesday at the Army Medical Center here.

Sergei Eisenstein

Moscow, Feb. 13 (NYHT).—Leaders of the Soviet world of art attended the funeral service today to pay final tribute to Sergei Eisenstein, the movie director who died here Tuesday.

His close friends and collaborators, weeping profusely, filed by the coffin and kissed his hand or forehead.

The body will be cremated and the ashes buried tomorrow in Novodevichy cemetery.

Man Falls Dead After Bowling Two Strikes Consecutively

Hugh E. Spittal, 38, librarian-geographer with the Army Map Service, bowled two consecutive strikes last night in the Bethesda Bowling Center, 76651 Old Georgetown rd., Bethesda—then fell dead.

After he scored his second strike about 7 p. m., "he turned around with a big smile on his ruddy face, took one step towards his friends, then keeled over," according to the alley's manager, Pat Troiano.

Spittal had been bowling as anchor man on a five-man team competing in the Army Map Service Bowling League. The tragedy cut short the night's competition for 99 other bowlers in the duckpin league who witnessed the incident, Troiano said.

Friends carried Spittal to a bench. The Bethesda-Chevy Chase Rescue Squad administered oxygen with a resuscitator for 20 minutes. He was pronounced dead at 7:30 p. m.

Born in Pittsburgh, Pa., he came to Washington two years ago and lived at 3712 Valley dr., Parkfairfax, Alexandria. He had taught geography at Pennsylvania State College for four years.

He is survived by his wife, Gladys, whom he married eight years ago, and a 16-month-old daughter, Pamela. The body is resting at the William Reuben Pumphrey funeral home, 7557 Wisconsin ave., Bethesda. Funeral arrangements were incomplete last night.

Legion Leader Would Admit DPs To This Country

By Genevieve Reynolds

Paul H. Griffith, past national commander of the American Legion, last night urged immediate emergency legislation to solve the problem of Displaced Persons.

Addressing a banquet session of a Child Welfare Area B Conference, sponsored by the American Legion and the American Legion Auxiliary, he said, "While on a recent trip to Europe I was told by Robert Murphy and Gen. Lucius Clay that the problem cannot be solved in Germany or Europe, that it must be solved here."

He pointed out that the Legion had been strongly opposed to admitting DPs but after investigating the matter and seeing conditions first hand, both he and the Legion had reversed their stand. "The American Legion by a vote of its national executive committee last November has relaxed its former opposition to the admission into the United States of displaced persons in Europe within 'fixed limitations,'" and under special Federal legislation, on the ground that this was an emergency humanitarian problem divorced from the general subject of permanent immigration policy," he explained. "Action was taken on the recommendation of the national Americanism commission of which James Green of Omaha, Nebr., is chairman."

Griffith told of inspecting DP camps in Germany and of visits to Holland, France, Italy, Great Britain, Belgium and Switzerland. . . . .

Describes Conditions,

Describing conditions in DP camps in Germany, he said that the people were not living behind barbed wire enclosures and are free to go and come as they choose; that they are housed in former German schools, barracks and temporary barracks which had been set up during the war. He said that the camps were crowded with often two or three families living in one room.

"Under the German economy the DPs cannot find employment in that country," said Griffith, "nor can the refugees return safely to their homelands behind the iron curtain. They are a people without hope or prospect of future except what we may offer.

Belgium requested 18,000 coal miners, selected according to physical fitness, age and ability, to be sent from the DP camp in Frankfurt.

A Jewish camp received a request from Great Britain for 10,000 tailors. These, too, were to be selected according to job capabilities, age and physical fitness, according to Griffith.

"If we are going to allow other countries to request and get the best from the DP camps," he declared, "when the camps are dispersed, all the United States will have left will be the old and indigent who cannot make a living in this country. Therefore, it is important that the problem be solved now so we can also select from the most desirables."

Griffith said that as a matter of economy it is more advantageous for the United States to take its share of DPs now rather than to continue to maintain the camps. "It costs the United States 79 million dollars a year to maintain camps.

At the morning session, which opened the two-day area conference to which the D. C. American Legion and its auxiliaries are hosts, Dr. Winfred Overholser, superintendent of St. Elizabeths Hospital, recommended prompt psychiatric treatment for children who need it. "It is one of the most important needs in the field on child welfare and in preventing juvenile delinquency," he asserted.

THE suit's the thing, for spring—or any season for that matter. Here's one that is youthful, perky, gay, a typical 1948 silhouette suit. In keeping with current fashion trends, it is softer and more feminine than those you've owned in recent years. Replacing the severely tailored garment, it plays up little dressmaking touches, such as stitching, carved buttons and a saucy fillip at the hipline. Made of gabardine, it comes in pink, blue, gray and beige. Available at Kaplowitz specialty shop

Your Questions on Homemaking

I have a pair of light brown pigskin gloves that were cleaned with a commercial cleaning fluid which left a number of dark brown stains. Careful washing did not remove them. Can you tell me what, if anything, can be done to get them out?

A READER.

Sometimes when leather articles are cleaned in cleaning fluid and are not rinsed several times in fresh solution, dark streaks or stains will result. Also, slow drying will sometimes give them a streaked appearance. Cleaning the gloves again in the cleaning fluid might remove the stains. Squeeze the fluid repeatedly through the gloves and rinse very thoroughly in several clear rinses of solution. When clean, pat as much of the fluid from the gloves as possible with paper towels or tissues. When no more moisture can be removed in this way, stuff the fingers, thumbs and hands of the gloves with enough paper to hold them in shape and place in a well-ventilated place to dry.

If this doesn't completely remove the stains, dyeing them a deeper brown would make them usable again.

I want to make mint jelly using an apple jelly base. What kind of mint flavoring should I use? The only mint extract I am able to find in the stores is "Mint (Spearmint)." This does not impart the same flavor found in commercial mint jellies. M. C. H.

The mint flavor you wish to duplicate is probably the flavor which is obtained by using fresh mint leaves for flavor. At this time of year, it's not so easy to get fresh mint, but you should find it for sale in pots at large nursery or florists' greenhouses.

I have a bedroom which leads up from the kitchen by an open stairway. It is without heat, but all the warm air from the kitchen rises to it; this causes condensation of moisture to fairly run from the walls and drip from the ceiling. I think the trouble lies in the fact that plastering in this room was done directly over the brick wall with no air space or insulation between. Is there anything to be done about this situation besides having the thing rebuilt in the right way? Could there be some product that could be rubbed or plastered onto the walls and ceilings?

I. A.

As you suggest, condensation results when the moisture-laden air touches the much cooler wall of the upstairs room. An air space between the outside and inside wall would considerably decrease the condensation. An air space between the outside walls and inside plaster can be provided by replastering, the new plaster being spread on lath on furring strips, which should be at least an inch thick. Or, insulating boards or furring strips can be used, applying them on top of the plaster. These insulating wall boards can be either painted with casein paint or papered. It would not be wise to apply any material to the walls and ceiling of this room until the plaster has a chance to considerably dry out. If applied over plaster which contains a lot of moisture, the wallboard might bulge and buckle, necessitating replacement.

I have a natural color unfinished or suede finished leather handbag which has become soiled by use. Do you know of any establishment where I could send it to be cleaned or of any means by which I could clean it myself? L. R. A.

Many times it is possible to improve the appearance of suede articles considerably by dusting them with dry-cleaning powder. Allow the powder to remain on the purse for 30 minutes, then brush thoroughly with a soft brush. If this helps clean the bag, but doesn't remove all of the soil, the treatment can be repeated. I have not been able to find any commercial establishment in Washington which does this sort of work.

The other day I read a letter in your column from a reader who wanted to finish some white pine pieces to match bleached mahogany furniture. It sounded so exactly like the problem I had several years ago that I thought you might be interested in hearing how I solved mine. I bought a kidney-shaped table and chair of white pine and wanted to use them in the room with a bleached mahogany bed. I rubbed down the pine pieces with sandpaper until they were very very smooth, then applied a coat of satin-finish heavy varnish. After this dried thoroughly, I sanded it and applied another coat of this colorless varnish. This gave me a good match for the bleached mahogany and, conveniently enough, all the wood has darkened with age to the same degree. Of course, your other reader said she had applied a stain to her white pine. Unless she can get this all off with sandpaper, she may not be able to do what I did with mine. G. C. S.

Syrian Minister Honors Senor Belt, Cuban Envoy

By Marie McNair

THE Minister of Syria and Mme. El-Khouri entertained at a reception yesterday afternoon at the legation to bestow on the Cuban Ambassador, Dr. Guillermo Belt, the High Decoration of the Order of Ummayya, a glittering silver and gold embossed star suspended from a green and white ribbon. The award was made in appreciation of the Cuban vote at the United Nations Assembly against the partition of Palestine.

In the presentation speech the Minister recited the Biblical parable of Solomon who was called upon to decide the rightful mother of a small child. Dr. Belt, he said, was as just and wise as Solomon who refused to have the child cut up in order to give half to the real mother and the other half to the one who claimed to be the mother.

"Arabia is the true mother of Palestine," the Minister went on before the group of diplomats, the military and members of Congress. "Truth does not establish itself as truth by counting the number of votes" he read, "truth is its own judge."

The assembly had gathered in the dining room for the ceremony after cocktails in the drawing room across the hall.

Eastern Dishes

Eastern dishes of a dozen or more varieties tempted most of the guests to stay for supper. There was turkey stuffed with highly seasoned rice; lamb with the same filling; a meat concoction wrapped in leaves; meat balls flavored with nuts and spices; half a dozen salads.

And who was there? Well, first of all the Minister and Mme. El-Khouri and the Cuban Ambassador and Senora de Belt stood together as guests came in. The hostess wore a white gown with side draped skirt, the bodice sprinkled with gold sequins and an orchid at her shoulder. Senora de Belt had chosen a black jacket frock with pale blue satin blouse and a twisted velvet halo hat.

The Finnish Minister, Dr. Jutila, was one of the early arrivals without Mme. Jutila, who has fallen victim to the cold bug. Dr. Jutila had particular interest in the event yesterday for he confided to me that he expects to be leaving for Havana before long to present his credentials as Minister to Cuba, in addition to his duties here.

Envoys Attend

The Siamese Ambassador and Princess Wan Waithayakon were there, the latter in black with gold polka dots and a high white ruff about her neck. The Minister of Luxembourg and Mme. Gallais, came in, but too late for the ceremony.

Saw the Minister-Counselor of the Peruvian Embassy and Senora de Fernandez-Davila leaving to get home to change for dinner and the reception by the Spanish classes for the Director General of the Pan American Union and Senora de Lleras. The Minister of South Africa, Harry Andrews, and Mrs. Andrews in maize colored wool, were finding Mr. and Mrs. Cornelius Van H. Engert pleasant conversationalists for there's nothing Mr. Van Engert can't tell you about the Middle East. The Charge d'Affaires of Spain and Senora de Baraibar were in a group which included Senora de Drago, wife of the Counselor of the Argentine Embassy, and Senora de Rivero, wife of the Second Secretary of the Cuban Embassy. In fact the Cuban Embassy staff was there almost to a man. There were the Minister-Counselor, Dr. Jose Baron, and Senora de Baron in a becoming full skirted dark green frock: the Minister Counselor Joaquin Meyer; the Minister-Counselor Carlos Blanco and his pretty wife, and the First Secretary Ricardo Sarabasa and his Senora.

Standing quietly on the sidelines was the Turkish Ambassador, Huseyin Ragip Baydur, and still others were the former Polish Ambassador and Mme. Ciechanowska, Mrs. Robert Low Bacon in mink with a green and pink striped taffeta hat; the Greek Ambassador, Vassili Dendramis, Mr. and Mrs. Lothrop Stoddard, and Gen. and Mrs. Wade Haislip.

Lawyers Meet In Conference At U. N. Club

By Peggy Preston

FRIENDSHIP and understanding thrive best when the formal speech making pauses and minds meet over a quiet cocktail and a hearty dinner.

That was the purpose of yesterday's friendly dinner hour interlude at the United Nations Club for delegates to the first annual conference of the United Nations League of Lawyers. Meeting for the first time since the league was founded in 1946, men and women barristers from points around the globe began their conference at 4 p. m., and continued until 6 o'clock. At the evening session, Ernest Gross, legal adviser to the Department of State, delivering the principal address, drew the guests back into the assembly room.

But for a few brief hours the lawyers mingled, in a purely social mood in the lounge and dining room of the club. The group, numbering around 50 or 60, was representative of many nations.

Alexandre Parodi, Ambassador of France to the United Nations and executive vice president of the league, was down from New York for the occasion and presided at the conference. During intermission time he moved among the delegates, and was introduced to each and all by Howard S. LeRoy, handsome Washington lawyer who is secretary general of the league.

Here with the Ambassador was one of France's most outstanding women barristers, Mme. Sophie Vinaver, small dark haired, wearing a deep red jersey dress by Christian Dior. Mme. Vinaver holds the impressive title of Chief of the Legal Division of the French Supply Mission in New York. Also in their party was Paul Ordonneaux, French Consul in Manhattan.

These three were guests of honor at the dinner given by the Council of the league at 7:30.

Judge Nadine Lane Gallagher was among the women lawyers in attendance and also there were Dr. Pheobe Morrison, Mrs. Sonia Ruth Doss, Col. Mary Agnes Brown of the Veterans' Bureau, Miss Agatha LaLonde, and Miss Rose S. Zetzer of Baltimore.

Rings on Their Fingers

At a tea at their home in Wellesley Hills, Mass., this afternoon, the engagement of Miss Belle Oliver Hart to Gordon Curtis Plummer, son of Mr. and Mrs. Curtis Plummer of Wellesley Hills, is being announced by her mother, Mrs. Harold C. Hart, also of Suffolk, Va., and Washington, D. C.

The engagement is of interest in Washington, where the bride-elect's mother, Mrs. Belle Oliver Hart, served during the war with the War Production Board, the Office of Production Management and the National Defense Advisory Commission.

Spanish Class Reception Gala Event

Members of the White House and affiliated Spanish Classes entertained at a reception last evening at the Shoreham Hotel in honor of the Director of the Pan American Union and Senora de Lleras.

The Spanish classes, founded six years ago by Mrs. Clarence Norton Goodwin with a small group meeting in her apartment, have expanded to the White House and the Senate, all under the tutelage of Prof. Ramon Ramos, and have become a powerful force in the development of inter-American relations. Mrs. Truman sent a personal note of regret at not being able to attend last night.

Receiving with Mrs. Goodwin were Mrs. Julius Krug, wife of the Secretary of the Interior; Mrs. John L. Sullivan, wife of the Secretary of the Navy; Mrs. Leverett Saltonstall and Mrs. James P. Kem.

Strolling troubadours played as guests gathered and a musical program was given by Mrs. Gwen Acock, pianist, of Australia, former member of the Australian Symphony.

In order to break down the barriers of protocol, a novel feature of the reception was a group of four Washington residents to greet guests at the door with baskets filled with hearts on which were the names of the guests, to be worn throughout the evening. These assistant hostesses were Mrs. McCeney Werlich, Mrs. Helen Hendrick McKenna, Mrs. Harry H. Semmes and Mrs. A. Bruce Fahnestock.

A buffet supper was served, not in Spanish style, as might have been expected, but definitely "Southern," prepared by Mrs. Goodwin's own cook, Annie, and her staff.

Fan Letter And Advice For Lynch

By Paul Hume

Dear Christopher Lynch:

Your concert last night in Constitution Hall was a wonderful thing to hear, for many reasons.

First, because you have that naturally beautiful voice, with which you so often give moments of breath-taking loveliness. You know the sort of place: the clear, easy high "B" in your first song, O Del Mio Dolce Ardor; or the gentleness of the way you end "Have you seen but a white lily grow?" And the phrasing in your singing of the aria from "L'Arlesiana" by Cilea. You were the third tenor to sing that aria this season in Constitution Hall, and the first to combine both feeling and vocalism.

Your diction is clear, except in very rapid passages, such as Haydn's Sailor Song, or the Ballynure Ballad, but there is work to be done on French. At your age, there is plenty of time to round out a perfect vocal technique, and you are certainly on the right track. But watch that tendency to sing out of the left side of your mouth, and don't make a habit of flirting with the underside of the pitch.

But above all, while you are still in your twenties, get started in the music which represents the finest achievements in the world of song. You are right to hold to the memory and teaching of John McCormack, for he was one of the greatest singers of all time. And his greatness lay not only in the matchless way he could sing the simplest folk song, wherein you often reach real heights too.

McCormack's genius rested on his flawless diction in any language and his absolutely peerless singing of Bach, Handel, Schubert, Mozart and the others who have created the world's mightiest songs. Work on these. They are made for your voice, but they take so much more than voice. And you have it to give. You must set your own standards and your own limits, for your public will listen to anything you sing, and will applaud your efforts regardless of the direction they take.

Keep the simple qualities of your folk songs; there was nothing better on your whole list than the way you sang "My Lagan Love." But add to this the solid foundation of the true singer's art. It will always be a pleasure to listen to you, and to your fine partner, Eugene Bossart, whose playing does so much for your singing. Sincerely,

PAUL HUME.

Weekly Papers Advised How To Improve

Baltimore, Feb. 13 (AP).—Improved weekly newspapers can come from improved news and advertising presentation, members of the Maryland Press Association were told today.

A clinic on handling of news by weeklies was the principal business of the afternoon session of a two-day meeting.

Ashby B. Land, executive secretary of the association, presented his report at a morning session at which speakers also included C. E. Bray of Easton, Sheridan Fahnestock of Leonardtown, C. S. Musser of Boonsboro, James E. Byrd of Princess Anne, and William G. Kerbin of Snow Hill.

The news and advertising clinic discussions were led by J. Fulton Lewis, editor of the County Chronicle at Glen Burnie, and Mrs. J. Reed Bradley, editor of the record at Bethesda.

Participating in the discussion were John V. Horner, assistant State editor of the Washington Star; William Mahoney, State editor of the Baltimore News-Post, Donald Brave of the Joseph Katz agency, Baltimore; Blair Lee, III, editor of the Maryland News at Silver Spring; and Max Fullerton, chief of the Baltimore Bureau of the Associated Press.

Appropriately Enough, 'Volitant' Means 'Able to Fly'

When Carl Loveday came here for the National Capital Badminton Doubles Championships, he walked off with two titles. But in exchange he left behind a fascinating story.

Asked what he did for a living, Loveday replied that he was production manager of the Volitant Publishing Co., which puts out such magazines as Sir and Cover Girl Fashions.

"Oh, yes," Loveday laughed. "You see, my boss had a racehorse and one day he bet a pretty good chunk of money on it.

"The horse came romping in at big odds, and that gave the boss the bankroll he needed to start his publishing business.

"So when it came time to choose a name for the business, he named it after the horse—Volitant."

LINCOLN DAY POSTSCRIPT

On Lincoln's birthday, ABC Storyteller Ted Malone devoted his program to Honest Abe.

Borrowing some material from the February issue of Coronet Magazine, he told of the remarkable coincidence which led Robert Todd Lincoln to turn down invitations to the White House for more than 20 years.

The President's eldest son was present when the Great Emancipator breathed his last; 16 years later he was on the railroad platform on which Garfield was shot; and 20 years after that he was near President McKinley when our third Chief Executive was assassinated.

After that (according to the legend) Robert Todd Lincoln considered himself a jinx, and stayed away from our Presidents—"for their own good."

MARY HAWORTH'S MALE

Mary Haworth recently got a letter from a guy who couldn't get his girl to say "yes" to a proposal of marriage. He asked "what do I do now?"

Miss Haworth recommended that he keep on trying, and reminded him that faint heart never won any fair maiden's hand.

Take your time; delay, my dear;
You'll be mine, if not this year
Then next—'cause I'll be waiting.

ORNITHOLOGICAL NOTE

I have known many Cardinals in my time—Pepper Martin, Diz Dean, Lon Warneke and all the rest. But unfortunately I have never made the acquaintance of any cardinals with wings.

And that accounts for my boner in printing the recent item about the cardinal which had been seen near Bolling Field.

V. V. Gaines of 1905 Maryland ave. ne. was quick to point out that cardinals stay here all winter. H. V. Sommer of 630 Chestnut ave., Falls Church, Va., added that he has six pairs of them feeding in his back yard right now.

So the presence of cardinals in February is definitely not news, in spite of my misapprehension that they go to Florida for the season each year.

WELL-TURNED PHRASE

This is new to me; maybe you'll enjoy it, too.

Mrs. Philip Marcus of 2902 Allison st., Mount Rainier, Md., tells me that the second and third grades of the Mount Rainier Elementary School have "adopted" the French village of Bohars.

The children are collecting such things as soap, candles (even stubs will do), towels, pencils and small toys—and, of course, they'd appreciate your help.

The name they've chosen for their project is "The Little Marshall Plan, or the Caboose to the Friendship Train."

ADD HIEROGLYPHICS

This department is pleasantly surprised to learn that it is winning something of a following at Fork Union Military Academy, Fork Union, Va. T. P. V. writes:

"I can sympathize with 'Old Man' Reid and his illegible handwriting.

"I received a similar complaint about my handwriting from my history instructor. When I turned in my next paper, I used the answer Mr. Reid had given you. My instructor's reply was:

"'I suggest that you heed
The advice sent to Reid.'"

RETURN IN KIND

You ask the age-old question,
Am I your Valentine?
And yet you guard your own heart
While reaching out for mine.

I learned at mother's knee,

NEW YORK.—Gen. Napoleon Zervas, Greece's deposed Minister of Public Order, has popped up mysteriously in this country . . . The Emergency Committee of the Atomic Scientists may abandon its campaign to educate the people regarding atomic energy . . . Paul Gallico's lead article in Esquire is the most penetrating expose of a Broadway columnist. The lady who is the subject of the article said: "I'm careful of my figure, but I never thought I'd wind up as a sketch in Esquire."

POLITICS: Dwight Griswold, Chief of the American Aid Mission to Greece, will come back shortly to testify on the Marshall Plan . . . Governor Griswold will not return to Greece.

BOOK DEPARTMENT: Earl Selle, author of the new book, "Donald of China," told the Overseas Press Club yesterday that the book was written in a race against death, because he found Donald in a hospital in Hawaii, desperately ill. Selle had a dictograph set up beside Donald's bed, and Donald dictated his remarkable story. And when Donald's voice became too weak he insisted that his hand was still strong enough to write. "The book wasn't written," says Selle. "It was recorded."

BUSINESS DEPARTMENT: Chappell & Co. published, before the show opened, the score of the new musical, "Look Ma, I'm Dancin',"—all except the Texas song, because its censorable lyrics assured its being banned by the networks. But the demand for it by sheet-music buyers topped all others. Chappell therefore decided to publish it yesterday. And because there is only one copy of the lyrics, the publisher had to send someone to the theater to jot down the lyrics while they were being sung onstage.

FINANCE DEPARTMENT: A visitor at the office of Dr. Harley N. Davis, head of Stevens Institute of Technology, noticed an old grandfather's clock in the office. Its ticking was loud, unusually loud. "Can't you, with the engineering skill available here, make the ticking softer?" . . . "Of course," said Dr. Davis, and then showed the visitor a label inside. It stated that the clock was a gift from a man who also had left a $21,000 bequest to the institute. And if the clock ever is allowed to run down, the money is to go to Columbia. That's why Dr. Davis keeps the clock in his office—and ticking loudly.

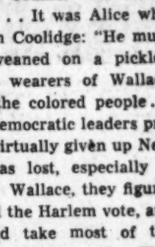
The Washington Merry-Go-Round

Flynn Call On Truman Explained

By Drew Pearson

Boss of the Bronx Ed Flynn, who had a great deal to do with picking Harry Truman for Vice President at Chicago, has a queer complex about liberalism. He has repeatedly urged Truman to appoint a Negro as Federal judge in New York in order to attract the Negro vote, yet he turns round and tries to undercut a Government agency which protects the economic welfare of both Negroes and whites.



Ed. J. Flynn

That is what the charming Ed was up to when he visited at the White House this week.

His visit was aimed at persuading Truman to appoint Paul Rowen of Boston to the Securities and Exchange Commission, and simultaneously to make Ed Hanrahan of New York chairman.

On the surface this sounds innocent enough. But below the surface it happens that Hanrahan, already a member of the SEC, has come under the influence of Wall Street to such an extent that it's a foregone conclusion that as chairman he would try to throw overboard the Holding Company Act, one of the greatest landmarks in FDR's battle against the big utilities.

It also happens that Rowen is pledged in advance to vote for Hanrahan for chairman.

Merry-Go-Round

Alice Roosevelt Longworth, Bob Taft's best socialite booster, has a new word for Dewey. In 1944 she called him "The little man on the wedding cake." Now she says: "Dewey is a souffle. He never rises twice" . . . It was Alice who said of Calvin Coolidge: "He must have been weaned on a pickle" . . . Biggest wearers of Wallace buttons are the colored people . . . That's why Democratic leaders privately have virtually given up New York State as lost, especially if Dewey runs. Wallace, they figure, will swing all the Harlem vote, and Dewey would take most of the New York Jewish vote. Also, Wallace will carve out a sizable hunk of the New York City labor vote . . . Tammany leaders are so glum about Truman's prospects in New York State that many have already decided to sit it out. They're more interested in 1949—the election for Mayor of New York . . . Jim Farley is all for the Republicans when it comes to the income tax and the Taft-Hartley bills. That's one reason he says he can't make too many political speeches now—it might be embarrassing . . . It was Jim Farley who gave Senator Howard McGrath his first job as United States attorney in Providence, R. I. That's one reason McGrath is so strong for Farley . . . Friends suggested to Tom Watson (International Business Machines and Eisenhower's political mentor) that Ike run for Governor of New York in 1950. This would get him back in the presidential race in 1952. Watson was noncommittal.

What Happened to Kaiser

Even on the stock market it's sometimes a fact that mighty oaks from little acorns grow. Take, for instance, the mysterious attempted stock flotation for Kaiser-Frazer automobiles.

On February 2 Henry Kaiser, the big West Coast shipbuilder who had the nerve to invade Detroit to build automobiles, sat down with his bankers to iron out final details of a $17,000,000 stock flotation. Kaiser had successfully carried out his auto threat, was turning out 1100 cars per day at the Willow Run plant, had made $5 per share during his first year of operation. He now wanted money to push production to 1500 cars daily.

Participating in the conference were Otis & Co. of Cleveland, the First California Co. of San Francisco, and Allen & Co. of New York. Kaiser-Frazer stock, it was agreed, would be sold to the public on February 4, at $13 a share, but it was also agreed that to keep the price up the day before Kaiser would buy his own stock at $13.50.

What Kaiser didn't know, however, was that Cyrus Eaton, head of Otis & Co., was going to tip off brokers to this fact. Supposedly this support agreement to keep the price at $13.50 on February 3, the day before the stock flotation, was to be kept a strict secret.

But it wasn't. Furthermore, Eaton's telegram to brokers amounted to an invitation to them to dump Kaiser stock at $13.50 on February 3 and buy it back for $13 on February 4.

Kaiser Pays Off

As a result there was a mad rush to sell Kaiser stock. Further result was that Kaiser had to shell out around $2,400,000 of his own money to buy his own stock. However, he kept his word. Grimly for one long day, he bought up his own stock at the rate of 500 per minute.

Otis & Co. and the First California Co., however, did not keep their word. As the time approached for these two underwriters to take over the Kaiser-Fraser stock they had pledged to sell, a Philadelphia lawyer, James F. Masterson, mysteriously brought suit against Kaiser. In fact, he brought the suit exactly 40 minutes before Otis & Co. was supposed to pay up.

And what most people didn't know was that Lawyer Masterson had previously been close to Eaton and the railroad he finances, the Chesapeake & Ohio.

What people did know, however, was that the tumultuous selling of Kaiser-Fraser stocks on the day brokers had been tipped off they could make a killing, was followed next day by the general stock market nosedive.

Maybe the nosedive would have come later anyway. But the manner in which the bankers let down the one man who had dared buck the big auto companies certainly didn't help to retard it.

Note 1—Cyrus Eaton of Otis & Co. has been extremely critical of Secretary of Commerce Averell Harriman and his former investment banking connections.

Note 2—Other bankers, including the Bank of America and the First Boston Corp., have indicated that they will now take up Kaiser's unfinished financing.

Capital Chaff

An Arab mob recently set fire to two American automibles and stormed into the offices of the Arabian-American Oil Co. Another mob confiscated a jeep from two American oilmen. The State Department fears Arab forces may attack the strategic pipeline, now being built into Saudi Arabia . . . President Truman has told Lever Brothers soap people he plans to offer their American star, Charles Luckman, a new important Government job . . . Supreme Court decisions thus far this year indicate that Chief Justice Fred M. Vinson is again siding with the right wing of the Court.
